Adverse Cutaneous Drug Eruptions L. E. French, 2012-07-01. The skin is one of the most frequently involved organs in adverse drug reactions. Occurring with an incidence of 1-5% for certain types of drugs, cutaneous drug eruptions are mostly benign in nature and comprise the maculopapular type of eruption and urticaria. However, about one-third of them require hospital treatment, leading to a considerable burden for the health care system. In this book, a selected group of experts provide an up-to-date, condensed, and clinically relevant overview of the field of cutaneous drug eruptions, ranging from epidemiology and genetic predisposition to available therapeutic measures, including rapid drug desensitization. Reflecting the great progress made in recent years in this field, this publication will be a useful tool for a better understanding diagnosis and management of cutaneous drug eruptions not only for general physicians dermatologists and clinical allergologists but also for nurses and scientists Child Development Laura Berk, 2015-05-20 Child Development
