Student Exploration: Mouse Genetics (One Trait)

Vocabulary: allele, DNA, dominant allele, gene, genotype, heterozygous, homozygous, hybrid, inheritance, phenotype, Punnett square, recessive allele, trait

Prior Knowledge Questions (Do these BEFORE using the Gizmo.)

1. The image shows a single litter of kittens. How are they similar to one another? They all have spots, though they are different spots. They have the same type of fur and the size of their ears is about the same size. And also they are all just so cute! ☺

2. How do they differ from one another? They differ from each other because they have different color of spots and size of spots. They have a few visible differences but they also have differences that cannot be seen only by the eyes. Like their personalities. All of the kittens have different kinds of personalities.
3. What do you think their parents looked like? Their parents probably look similar to their kittens, they might have had spots and they are from the same cat family.

Gizmo Warm-up

The rules of inheritance were discovered in the 19th century by Gregor Mendel. With the Mouse Genetics (One Trait) Gizmo™, you will study how one trait, or feature, is inherited.

1. Drag two black mice into the Parent 1 and Parent 2 boxes. Click Breed several times. What do the offspring look like?

All the babies are with dark fur colors, no whites. Because black is a dominant color, so it produces black.

The appearance of each mouse is also called its phenotype.

Germany allowed the foundation of many new research institutes by the Max Planck Society and other organizations. Nevertheless it was a remarkable event. The acquisition by an academic organization of an institute formerly operated by an industrial company was rather unusual. Not to speak of the fact that not only the facilities but also the entire scientific personnel were taken over. Retrospectively the 40 years of the institute in the Max Planck Society can be divided into 2 very different phases of 20 years each. The first 20 years were characterized by a continuation of the research that had begun in the Wacker institute and centered on the structure and function of the bacterial compound endotoxin. During the second 20 years the institute more than doubled in size and developed into an interdisciplinary research center that focuses on the development and organization of multicellular systems by combining studies in two fields of research: immunology and developmental biology. The 40th anniversary of the foundation of the Max Planck Institute was celebrated by a ceremony including a scientific symposium. The first part of this volume presents the lectures given at the symposium by six leading biologists.
