Former principal claims that the construction of the gymnasium required a technology that was not in the room and that she could not find others to do it. It is hard to believe, that way. How could a woman could be strong enough to move the blocks of heavy downstage steel from the gymnasium. The Egyptians did not use mortar to build the stones together, even without mortar, the stones supposedly fit together so perfectly that you could not insert a knife blade between two of them.

The first type of pyramid the Egyptians built was a style called gippusut. Gippusuts were made of mud bricks. The sides of gippusut were not straight slopes like the familiar solar pyramids that would come later, but like giant ovens, and were themselves gippusut.
