mgr Kinga Drewniowska

What are human rights?

- HUMAN RIGHTS → set of norms governing the treatment of individuals and groups by a state and non-state actors on the basis of ethical principles regarding what society considers fundamental to a decent life.
- HUMAN RIGHTS → rights and freedoms to which every human being is entitled. Protection against breaches of these rights committed by a state (including the state of which the victim is a national) may in some cases be enforced in international law. It is sometimes suggested that human rights are so fundamental that they form part of natural law, but most of them are best regarded as forming part of treaty law.
- HUMAN RIGHTS → moral principles or norms that describe certain standards of human behaviour and are regularly protected in national and international law. They are applicable everywhere and at every time in the sense of being universal.

What are human rights?

HUMAN RIGHTS are:

- universal → they belong to all people equally regardless of status and they are the same for all human beings everywhere in the world
