inequality by explaining a key cause women's reproductive and lactation patterns. Until about 1900 infants nursed every fifteen minutes on average for two years because very frequent suckling prevented pregnancy. The practice evolved because it maximized infant survival. If a forager child was born before its older sibling could take part in the daily food search, the older one died. This practice persisted until the modern era because until after the discovery of the germ theory of disease, human milk was the only food certain to be unspoiled. Lactation patterns excluded women from the activities that led to political leadership. During the twentieth century the ancient mode declined and women entered the labor market en masse. Joan Huber challenges feminists toward a richer understanding of biological origins of inequality, knowledge that can help women achieve greater equality today.

First in Line Tom Gundling, 2005-01-01. During the early eighteenth century, colonial New England witnessed the end of Puritanism and the emergence of a revivalist religious movement that culminated in the evangelical awakenings of the 1740s. This engrossing book explores the religious history of New England during the period and offers new reasons for this change in cultural identity. After England's Glorious Revolution, says Thomas Kidd, New Englanders abandoned their previous hostility toward Britain, viewing it as the chosen leader in the Protestant fight against world Catholicism. They also imagined themselves part of an international Protestant community and replaced their Puritan beliefs with a revival centered pan-Protestantism. Kidd discusses the rise of the Protestant interest and provides a compelling argument about the origins of both eighteenth-century revivalism and the global evangelical movement.

Built by Animals Mike Hansell, 2007-10-18. From termite mounds that in relative terms are three times as tall as a skyscraper to the elaborate nests of social birds and the deadly traps of spiders, the constructions of the animal world can amaze and at times humble our own engineering and technology. But how do creatures with such small brains build these complex structures? What drives them to do it? Which skills are innate and which learned? Here Mike Hansell looks at the extraordinary structures that animals build, whether homes, traps, or courtship displays, and reveals the biology behind their behaviour. He shows how small-brained animals achieve complex feats in a small-brained way by repeating many simple actions and using highly evolved self secreted materials On the other hand the building feats or tool use of large brained animals such as humans or chimps require significantly more complex and costly behaviour We look at wasp s nests leaf cutting ants caddisflies and amoebae and even the extraordinary bower bird who seduces his mate with a decorated pile of twigs baubles feathers and berries Hansell explores how animal structures evolved over time how insect societies emerge how animals can alter their wider habitat and even whether some animals have an aesthetic sense

Punctuated Equilibrium Stephen Jay GOULD, Stephen Jay Gould, 2009-06-30 In 1972 Stephen Jay Gould took the scientific world by storm with his paper on punctuated equilibrium Challenging a core assumption of Darwin s theory of evolution it launched the controversial idea that the majority of species originates in geological moments punctuations and persists in stasis Now thirty five years later Punctuated Equilibrium offers his only book length testament on a theory he fiercely promoted repeatedly refined and tirelessly defended Source Book in Health and Physical Education Thomas Denison Wood, Clifford Lee Brownell, 1925 Evolution , 1927 Eugenical News , 1925 The Complete Home Learning Sourcebook Rebecca Rupp, 1998 Lists all the resources needed to create a balanced curriculum for homeschooling from preschool to high school level Dragon Bone Hill Noel T. Boaz, Russell L. Ciochon, 2004-02-16 Peking Man a cave man once thought a great hunter who had first tamed fire actually was a composite of the gnawed remains of some fifty women children and men unfortunate enough to have been the prey of the giant cave hyena Researching the famous fossil site of Dragon Bone Hill in China scientists Noel T Boaz and Russell L Ciochon retell the story of the cave s unique species of early human Homo erectus Boaz and Ciochon take readers on a gripping scientific odyssey New evidence shows that Homo erectus was an opportunist who rode a tide of environmental change out Africa and into Eurasia puddle jumping from one gene pool to the next Armed with a shaky hold on fire and some sharp rocks Homo erectus incredibly survived for over 1.5 million years much longer than our own species Homo sapiens has been on Earth Tell tale marks on fossil bones show that the lives of these early humans were brutal ruled by hunger and who could strike the hardest blow yet there are fleeting glimpses of human compassion as well The small brain of Homo erectus and its strangely unchanging culture indicate that the species could not talk Part of that primitive culture included ritualized aggression to which the extremely thick skulls of Homo erectus bear mute witness Both a vivid recreation of the unimagined way of life of a prehistoric species so similar yet so unlike us and a fascinating exposition of how modern multidisciplinary research can test hypotheses in human evolution Dragon Bone Hill is science writing at its best
