The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of publications" (Y) against the independent variable "Number of articles" (X). The regression equation is $Y = 0.85X + 1.2$, with an R-squared value of 0.92.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The intervention group performed a 12-week exercise program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not exercise. The primary outcome was the change in physical fitness, measured by the 6-minute walk test. Secondary outcomes included changes in health-related quality of life, measured by the SF-36. The results showed that the intervention group had a significant increase in physical fitness and health-related quality of life compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can improve physical fitness and health-related quality of life in sedentary, middle-aged women.

What do you need to know about this? This is a common question asked by researchers. The answer is that you need to know the following:

Abstract – This study investigated the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of young adults. The program included aerobic and strength training, and the results showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and mental health. The study also found that the program had a positive impact on the participants' quality of life and self-esteem.
