Firearms control Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Home Affairs Committee, 2010-12-20 The Home Affairs Committee reports that well designed legislation which regulates and restricts the legal supply of firearms can help to reduce gun crime The committee recognises that thousands of people use firearms responsibly for recreation and in their work It has no intention of restricting such activity However the committee today concludes that interpreting and applying the current 34 pieces of legislation governing the control of firearms places an onerous burden on the police and on members of the public who wish to abide by the law because it is so complex and confused In particular the committee recommends introducing one licensing system to cover all firearms which require a licence and identifies age restrictions on firearms use as a particular area of uncertainty Although the majority of firearms related crimes are not committed with licensed firearms the committee is also concerned about the use of legally owned weapons in domestic shootings including those related to domestic abuse The Committee has several recommendations including a review of the minimum age limits on the use of firearms and eligibility for firearms certificates recommends tighter restrictions and clearer guidance to the police on the granting of firearms and shotgun licences to individuals who have engaged in criminal activity considering requiring the police to consult the domestic partners of licence applicants in making the decision as to whether to grant a licence suggests that the Government considers requiring advocates raising the fees charged to applicants so that it covers the costs of licensing to ensure that police spending cuts do not jeopardise the rigour of the licensing process Finally the committee was concerned at evidence of the significant criminal threat posed by reactivated and converted firearms in response to tighter regulations on genuine

Committee on Appropriations, 1975 Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1968 The Government Taketh Away Leslie A. Pal, R. Kent Weaver, 2003-04-01 Democratic government is about making choices Sometimes those choices involve the distribution of benefits At other times they involve the imposition of some type of loss a program cut increased taxes or new regulatory standards Citizens will resist such impositions if they can or will try to punish governments at election time The dynamics of loss imposition are therefore a universal if unpleasant element of democratic governance The Government Taketh Away examines the repercussions of unpopular government decisions in Canada and the United States the two great democratic nations of North America Pal Weaver and their contributors compare the capacities of the U S presidential system and the Canadian Westminster system to impose different types of losses symbolic losses gun control and abortion geographically concentrated losses military base closings and nuclear waste disposal geographically dispersed losses cuts to pensions and to health care and losses imposed on business telecommunications deregulation and tobacco control Theory holds that Westminster style systems should all things being equal have a comparative advantage in loss imposition because they concentrate power and authority though this can make it easier to pin blame on politicians too The empirical findings of the cases in this book paint a more complex picture Westminster systems do appear to have some robust abilities to impose losses and US institutions provide more opportunities for loss avoiders to resist government policy in some sectors But in most sectors outcomes in the two countries are strikingly similar The Government Taketh Away is essential for the scholar and students of public policy or comparative policy It is also an important book for the average citizen who wants to know more about the complexities of living in a democratic society where the government can give but how it can also sometimes painfully taketh away
