Rethinking EMI Lily I-Wen Su,Hintat Cheung,Jessica R. W. Wu,2021-06-10 Due to the competitive edge it confers on students educational institutions and non English speaking nations in a globalized economy English as a medium of instruction EMI has been gaining popularity in tertiary education in non native English speaking NNEs countries Institute wide EMI implementation has often been imposed by top down decisions in combination with the optimistic view that the horse should always be placed before the cart However emerging evidence suggests that the delivery of such programs to NNEST students has led to new pedagogical challenges and learning problems that go beyond the scope of language learning and teaching and deserve immediate attention. For example, how would an instructor respond to situations in which students' learning of content is compromised by their limited language proficiency? This book draws on the current practice of EMI in diverse disciplines and university settings and examines how these new pedagogical and learning issues can be addressed. The discussion also involves a reflection on the essence of EMI in relation to the use of the first language (L1) as the medium of instruction in tertiary education. In addition, the book includes discussion about how to ensure and maintain the quality of EMI programs and assess the readiness of stakeholders for such programs, which include administrators, teachers, and students. The discussion is led by exemplars in Hong Kong and Taiwan, where the majority of students are native Chinese speakers, in the hope of developing critical perspectives and practical guidelines as references for EMI in other NNEST settings. Teaching Writing in Chinese Speaking Areas Mark Shiu-Kei Shum, 2005-07-27. One of the most civilized nations in history, China has a long-standing writing tradition, and many Chinese texts have become world treasures. However, the way the Chinese teach writing in various countries in contemporary times is little known to the outside world, especially in Western countries. Undoubtedly, the Chinese have had an established traditional method of writing instruction. However, recent social and political developments have created the perception amongst both practitioners and researchers of a need for change. Whilst certain socio-political changes both in Mainland China and in the territories acted as agents for reform of the teaching of composition, the shape these reforms are taking has been due to many different influences coming both from inside the countries themselves and from foreign sources. Mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Singapore have each developed their own approach to the teaching of composition. Teaching Writing in Chinese Speaking Areas aims to provide an accurate picture of the diverse composition teaching contexts and approaches in these four regions and countries. This is the first book that systematically introduces recent developments in teaching composition in Chinese-speaking areas. It outlines current theories and paradigms originating both in the West and in China and Chinese-speaking territories and the way in which these have been adapted to suit the various cultural contexts and learning environments. The overview is of relevance not only to the East but throughout the world.

EFL Writing Teacher Education and Professional Development Estela Ene, Betsy Gilliland, Sarah Henderson Lee, Tanita Saenkhum, Lisy Seloni, 2024-04-16. This book explores how EFL writing teacher education is theoretically, pedagogically, methodologically, and sociopolitically shaped given teachers' unique local contexts and circumstances. It showcases practitioners and researchers teaching in or studying geographic areas that have as yet been under-represented in international publications and it focuses on ways that specific contexts create unique opportunities and constraints on what developing teachers know and do in their work. The chapters prioritize local voices and materials to build a more inclusive and comprehensive picture of L2 writing globally enabling the book as a whole to both document and further shape pedagogical approaches to L2 writing Readers will be able to use the unique insights contained in this book in their own classrooms and professional development activities Innovative Approaches in Teaching English Writing to Chinese Speakers Barry Lee Reynolds, Mark Feng Teng, 2021-01-18 Informed by theory research and classroom practice the volume provides a systematic overview of critical L2 writing issues Additionally with the aim to support instruction across all levels of education for Chinese speakers this book introduces pre service and in service teachers to new teaching ideas techniques and practice
