The objective of this book is to present a critical review and evaluation of the so called conventional methods currently being used for bacterial identification as well as to discuss the new approaches for the detection and identification of bacteria Morphological biochemical and serological methods of detection and identification of bacteria in clinical specimens are emphasised and current methods of characterization and enumeration of bacteria in air water milk and other food materials are also described      Handbook ,1994 Item no 0431 K      Models for an Ecosystem Approach to Fisheries Éva E. Plagányi,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2007-01-01 This report reviews the methods available for examining ecosystem dynamics and assessing the impact of interactions between ecosystems and human activities particularly fisheries and their implications for marine fisheries management It focuses on the currently available models representative of general types such as bionergetic models predator prey models and minimally realistic models with short descriptions given of model parameters assumptions and data requirements It discusses the advantages disadvantages and limitations of each of the approaches and concludes with some recommendations for the future development of multi species and ecosystem models      The Method of Response Function in Psychology & Sociology Irina G. Malkina-Pykh,Y. A. Pykh,2013 Social psychological and sociological systems present considerable difficulties for modellers due to their complexity multidimensionality uncertainty and irreducibility The book proposes that response functions MRF be used as a method of constructing purposeful credible and integrated social systems models from data and prior knowledge or information A semi empirical or grey box MRF model may be regarded as a trade off between a knowledge based model and a black box empirical model It may embody all the existing knowledge on the process or a part thereof and in addition it relies on parameterised functions whose parameters are determined from measurements Observations contain hidden information on the processes under consideration and one of the main purposes of the proposed method is to extract and describe these hidden relationships Parameterisation offers ways to couple qualitative with quantitative analysis This combination makes it possible to take into account all the phenomena that are not modelled with the required accuracy through prior knowledge Although only a simplified picture of the processes is modelled a grey box system model provides some insight into the system processes These processes are featured by chains of causality highlighting stressors and variables responsive to stressors The method of response functions is a nonlinear regression method that implies credible models in the sense that they are identifiable and hopefully explain system output behaviour satisfactorily For case studies the authors have selected the problems usually studied by psychologists and sociologists with statistical procedures such as investigation of variance and discriminant analysis based on the general linear model or one of its multivariate generalisations structural equation models etc disordered eating and obesity subjective well being and alexithymia An accompanying CD ROM contains the demonstration versions of three models that are discussed in the various chapters The Method of Response Functions in Psychology and Sociology is aimed at Mathematical Psychologists Mathematical Sociologists Applied Psychologists Sociologists and Social Practitioners It will also be suitable for use on undergraduate as well as graduate and postgraduate courses specializing in these areas The Publishers Weekly ,1894 The American Catalogue ,1885 American national trade bibliography The American Catalog ,1885 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1984 Dipterocarp Biology, Ecology, and Conservation Jaboury Ghazoul,2016 This book provides a current and comprehensive review of the Dipterocarpaceae at the genetic species and community scales incorporating a vibrant blend of ecology biogeography evolution conservation and management
