Model of the control process involving a sensor, a controller, an actuator and a feedback loop. The model is used to describe the control process in a system.

Model of a Negative Feedback Loop

Homeostatic control systems are characterized by a negative feedback loop. It is a control system through which a system corrects a negative feedback loop, similar to the way that a thermostat in a house corrects a change in temperature. When the temperature in a house is too high, the thermostat turns on the air conditioning, which then cools the house, bringing the temperature back to normal.
