Hensley, 1995 It is estimated that 10% of American families have children with special learning needs Sharon Hensley gives her readers a fresh perspective in facing the challenges of home schooling children with special needs Parents will appreciate her first hand experience dealing with the frustrations and joys of raising and teaching children with special needs

Parents and Families of Students With Special Needs Vicki A. McGinley, Melina Alexander, 2017-01-05 Parents and Families of Students With Special Needs Collaborating Across the Age Span teaches students the skills they need to effectively collaborate with parents and families to ensure a child's success in the classroom. Authors Vicki A. McGinley and Melina Alexander's text takes a lifespan approach with a special emphasis on the critical transition points in a child's life. Information is provided on what can be seen at each stage of an individual with disabilities' development and addresses concerns and needs that families may have during these unique phases of growth. Chapters written by professors and professionals who are also parents of students with special needs bring a diverse range of voices into the narrative. The authors provide an in-depth discussion of how parents and families are affected by particular disabilities, family system theory, the laws that affect individuals with disabilities, and assessments for individuals with disabilities. Home Schooling

Promising Practices Connecting Schools to Families of Children with Special Needs Diana Hiatt-Michael, 2004-02-01. Recipient of AERA Outstanding Contributions Relating Theory to Practice Award Interpretive Scholarship for 2004. Walking This Path Together, 3rd Edition Gwendolyn

Gosek, 2025-04-29T00:00:00Z. Canadian child welfare policies and practices have been central to maintaining a settler colonial nation by controlling and managing the childhoods and future lives of children. While ostensibly grounded in the best interests of the child, child welfare policies and practices far too often make the lives of young people more precarious because they are stratified along race and class lines rather than caring for their wellbeing. There have been dire consequences for Indigenous communities but also for Black newcomer non-citizen and poor people who are also disproportionately the primary focus of child welfare. The contributors to this book reveal these unjust conditions so that workers can contribute to the ongoing transformation of child welfare to facilitate child wellbeing. The third edition of Walking This Path Together continues the transformative vision of the first two editions and charts a new way forward. There are several new chapters and authors who focus on Māori kinship protocols, family group conferencing, decolonizing child welfare, and the criminalization of newcomers, refugee children, and Indigenous youth in care. They demonstrate how to bring forward transformative practices to moving child welfare into a truly new decolonial era. This transformative vision is the path that we are walking. International Perspectives on Home Education P. Rothermel, 2015-03-23. This collection brings together the research of an eclectic mix of leading names in home-based education studies worldwide. It uses home education to explore contemporary education outside of school and place it into a global political and critical context and will be essential reading for home educators, academics, and policymakers alike. Resources in Education, 2001-10.
