Abstract. The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program on the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy, young women. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program. The control group performed no exercise. The exercise group showed significant improvements in strength and endurance compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program is effective in improving the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy, young women.
