

The background of the cover is a dark, misty forest. A person, seen from behind, stands in the center of the frame, holding a flashlight that illuminates the path ahead. The trees are tall and thin, and the ground is covered in a layer of mist or fog. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and suspenseful.

The Principles and Practice of Surgery John Ashhurst,1889 Spatial memory - a unique window into healthy and pathological ageing Thomas Wolbers,Paul A Dudchenko,Emma R Wood,2015-01-09 The global population aged over 60 is set to rise dramatically in the coming decades In many countries the older population now faces the prospect of spending a quarter of their lives aged over 65 and a significant proportion will have to cope with cognitive decline associated with normal ageing or with dementia disorders Given that these fundamental demographic changes will pose a significant challenge to health care systems a detailed understanding of age related cognitive and neurobiological changes is essential in helping elderly populations maintain cognitive performance In addition developing sensitive biomarkers to identify those at risk of developing dementia is crucial for early and effective interventions To make inferences about the ageing process from the animal model back to the human rigorous behavioral paradigms must be used to ensure that the same function is being examined across species Given that similar navigational paradigms can easily be applied to humans and animals recent years have seen an expansion of studies attempting to bridge the gap between age related changes in animal and human spatial cognition These studies begin to suggest that disruptions in spatial computations are among the earliest indicators of impending cognitive decline In addition although many animal studies have identified pathological mechanisms with paradigms involving spatial navigation these mechanisms support many nonspatial cognitive functions as well As a consequence a successful characterization of how spatial processing changes in the ageing brain could reveal fundamental effects of cognitive ageing that could inform about general mechanisms underlying decline in perception mnemonic processing and multisensory integration

Torres,Jonathan T. Delafield-Butt,Vikram K. Jaswal,Susan Crawford,Ashok Srinivasan,Brittany Travers,2025-08-19 A decade ago in 2013 the Research Topic Autism the Movement Perspective proposed the radical idea that using movement and its sensations could help us better understand the many complex layers of autism spectrum disorders Inspired by earlier work from other fields the work positioned front and center approaches from neuromotor control infusing the research with new computational ideas to study autism across the human lifespan Through the lens of motor variability as a form of kinesthetic reafference causal inference and predictive codes the Research Topic brought together a group of researchers parents practitioners and self advocates to rethink autism as sensory motor differences contributing to the emergence of powerful coping mechanisms that advanced our understanding of how the human brain develops and functions Today with new improvements in biosensing technologies and neuroscience and the embodied and affective psychology on which development is based we revisit this Research Topic approaching autism anew through a modernized lens of precision aimed at enabling socio motor agency
