Dear Journal,

Today was another long day. I made up my mind to help Maria with the washing. My mother's head was as limbered as the iron, but we needed the extra pennies and Maria had to leave for the laundry. Papa left before sunrise to look for work again. He went to find a steady job at the factory, but they closed last year. Now, he walks from business to business, trying to find a steady job. Most days, he comes home with nothing but sad eyes and a quiet sigh.

For lunch, the dinner again, Maria boiled water with some potatoes and onions, adding as far as she could. I could tell she was still hungry, but she gave the last bit to my little brother. I try not to complain, but my stomach growls all the time now. For dinner, I walked past the soup kitchen in town. The line stretched around the block. The people looked like they hadn't eaten in days. I was lucky to have a meal at home, even if it wasn't much.

I wonder what things will get better. Papa says we have to keep hoping. I try, but sometimes, my heart feels as empty as my plate.
