Greenhouse Farming Manual In Kenya:

Recarbonizing global soils – A technical manual of recommended sustainable soil management Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Intergovernmental Technical Panel on Soils, 2021-09-08 During the last decades soil organic carbon SOC attracted the attention of a much wider array of specialists beyond agriculture and soil science as it was proven to be one of the most crucial components of the earth's climate system which has a great potential to be managed by humans. Soils as a carbon pool are one of the key factors in several Sustainable Development Goals in particular Goal 15 Protect, restore and promote sustainable use of terrestrial ecosystems, sustainably manage forests, combat desertification and halt and reverse land degradation and halt biodiversity loss with the SOC stock being explicitly cited in Indicator 15.3.1. This technical manual is the first attempt to gather in a standardized format the existing data on the impacts of the main soil management practices on SOC content in a wide array of environments including the advantages, drawbacks and constraints. This manual presents different sustainable soil management (SSM) practices at different scales and in different contexts supported by case studies that have been shown with quantitative data to have a positive effect on SOC stocks and successful experiences of SOC sequestration in practical field applications. Volume 3 includes a total of 49 practices that have a direct impact on SOC sequestration and maintenance in cropland, grassland, integrated systems and farming approaches.

Rosenstock, Mariana C. Rufino, Klaus Butterbach-Bahl, Lini Wollenberg, Meryl Richards, 2016-08-23 This book provides standards and guidelines for quantifying greenhouse gas emissions and removals in smallholder agricultural systems and comparing options for climate change mitigation based on emission reductions and livelihood trade-offs. Globally, agriculture is directly responsible for about 11% of annual greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and induces an additional 17% through land use change, mostly in developing countries. Farms in the developing countries of sub-Saharan Africa and Asia are predominately managed by smallholders with 80% of land holdings smaller than ten hectares. However, little to no information exists on greenhouse gas emissions and mitigation potentials in smallholder agriculture. Greenhouse gas measurements in agriculture are expensive, time-consuming and error-prone challenges only exacerbated by the heterogeneity of smallholder systems and landscapes. Concerns over methodological rigor, measurement costs and the diversity of approaches coupled with the demand for robust information suggest it is germane for the scientific community to establish standards of measurements for quantifying GHG emissions from smallholder agriculture Standard guidelines for use by scientists development organizations will help generate reliable data on emissions baselines and allow rigorous comparisons of mitigation options The guidelines described in this book developed by the CGIAR Research Program on Climate Change Agriculture and Food Security CCAFS and partners are intended to inform anyone conducting field measurements of agricultural greenhouse gas sources and sinks especially to develop IPCC Tier 2 emission factors or to compare mitigation options in smallholder systems

Agricultural land is subjected to a variety of societal pressures as demands for food animal feed and biomass production increase with an added requirement to simultaneously maintain natural areas and mitigate climatic and environmental impacts The biotic elements of agricultural systems interact with the abiotic environment to generate a number of ecosystem functions that offer services benefiting humans across many scales of time and space The intensification of agriculture generally reduces biodiversity including that within soil and impacts negatively upon a number of regulating and supporting ecosystem services There is a global need toward achieving sustainable agricultural systems as also highlighted in the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals There is hence a need for management regimes that enhance both agricultural production and the associated provision of multiple ecosystem services The articles of this Research Topic enhance our knowledge of how management practices applied to agricultural systems affect the delivery of multiple ecosystem services and how trade offs between provisioning regulating and supporting services can be handled both above and below ground They also show the diversity of topics that need to be considered within the framework of ecosystem services delivered by agricultural systems from knowledge on basic concepts and newly proposed frameworks to a focus on specific ecosystem types such as grasslands and high nature value farmlands pollinator habitats and soil habitats This diversity of topics indicates the need for broader scope research integrated with targeted scientific research to promote sustainable agricultural practices and to ensure food security
