Brown,2021-05-13 Environmental engineers work to increase the level of health and happiness in the world by designing building and operating processes and systems for water treatment water pollution control air pollution control and solid waste management These projects compete for resources with projects in medicine transportation education and other fields that have a similar objective The challenge is to make the investments efficient to get the best project outputs with a minimum of inputs Cost Engineering for Pollution Prevention and Control examines how to identify the best solution by judging alternatives with respect to some measure of system performance such as total capital cost annual cost annual net profit return on investment cost benefit ratio net present worth minimum production time maximum production rate minimum energy utilization and so on Key Features Explains how to estimate preliminary costs how to compare the life cycle costs of alternative projects how to find the optimal balance between capital costs and operating costs Emphasis is placed on formulating the problem rather than on the mathematical details of how the calculations are done Provides numerous practical examples and case studies Includes end of chapter exercises dealing with water wastewater air pollution solid wastes and remediation projects The important concepts presented in this book can be understood by those students who have taken an introductory course in environmental engineering Advanced knowledge of process design is not required The material can also be utilized by engineers managers and others who would benefit from a better understanding of how engineers look at problems

Measures and Determinants of Urban Food Security: Evidence from Accra, Ghana Tuholske, Cascade,Andam, Kwaw S.,Blekking, Jordan,Evans, Tom,Caylor, Kelly,2018-11-22 The urban population in Africa south of the Sahara SSA is expected to expand rapidly from 376 million people in 2015 to more than 1 25 billion people by 2050 Measuring and ensuring food security among urban households will become an increasingly pertinent task for development researchers and practitioners In this paper we characterize food security among a sample of low and middle income residents of Accra Ghana using 2017 survey data We find that households tend to purchase food from traditional markets local stalls and kiosks and street hawkers and rarely from modern supermarkets We characterize food security using three established metrics the Household Food Insecurity Access Scale HFIAS the Household Food Insecurity Access Prevalence HFIAP and the Food Consumption Score FCS We then estimate the determinants of food security using general linear models The food security

metrics are not strongly correlated For example according to HFIAP as many as 70 percent of households sampled are food insecure but only 2 percent fall below acceptable thresholds measured by FCS Model results show that household education assets and dwelling characteristics are significantly associated with food security according to HFIAS and HFIAP but not with FCS The poor correlation and weak model agreement between the dietary recall metric FCS and the experience based metrics HFIAS and HFIAP call for closer attention to measurement of urban food security Given Africa s urban future our findings highlight the need for an urban oriented comprehensive approach to the food security of urban households
