

Popular Culture and Consumerism

The era of the 1920s was marked by the rise of leisure activities and purchases of consumer goods in industrialized nations. Shorter workdays and slowly improving economies gave people more money and free time. After years of war, many were ready to enjoy life. Feats like Charles Lindbergh's first solo flight across the Atlantic in 1927 seemed to many to signal a new era of progress.

Entertainment

The chief entertainment for popular audiences of the 1920s and 1930s was the motion picture. Developed in about 1900, motion pictures were first shown publicly about 10 years later. By the 1920s millions of moviegoers regularly flocked to theaters to see their favorite films. By the late 1930s, for example, 40 percent of British adults said they went to the movies once a week. Some 25 percent said they went twice a week.

While some films reflected the darker feelings of the postwar years, most movies offered an escape and entertainment. Slapstick comedies were among the most popular films of the era. The 1927 film The Jazz Singer further revolutionized film by introducing sound.

Playing and watching sports became very popular throughout the world. Baseball was popular in the United States and Japan. Golf was widely played and followed in both countries, as well as in parts of Europe. Tennis was another popular sport, attracting players and spectators throughout the United States and Europe.

Europe and Latin American enjoyed soccer, also called football. The game became so popular internationally that the World Cup soccer tournament was established in 1930.

The modern Olympics also grew in popularity. The ancient Greek athletic contest was revived in 1896 and held every four years. Amateur athletes from around the world competed in the games. Many Olympic athletes became instant heroes in their home countries. Countries around the world vied for the privilege of hosting the games, which brought revenue and great prestige to the sponsoring nation.
