Altsheler, 2014-03-13 John turned a little to the left going nearer to the window where he could gain a better view of the Madonna which he had heard so often was the most famous picture in the world He was no technical judge of painting he was far too young for such knowledge but he always considered the effect of the whole upon himself and he was satisfied with that method feeling perhaps that he gained more from it than if he had been able to tear the master work to pieces merely in order to see how Raphael had made it Note well John that this is the Sistine Madonna began William Anson in his didactic tutorial tone Observe the wonderful expression upon the face of the Holy Mother Look now at the cherubs gazing up into the blue vault in which the Madonna like an angel is poised Behold the sublime artist s mastery of every detail There are those who hold that the Madonna della Sedia at Florence is its equal in beauty and greatness but I do not agree with them To me the Sistine Madonna is always first Centuries ago even its full worth was appreciated It brought a great price at The rest of his speech trailed off into nothingness John had impatiently moved further away and had deliberately closed his ear also to any dying sounds of oratory that might reach him He had his own method of seeing the wonders of the Old World He was interested or he was not It was to him a state of mind atmospheric in a way He liked to breathe it in and the rattle of a guide or tutor s lecture nearly always broke the spell JOSEPH A. The Youth's Companion Nathaniel Willis, Daniel Sharp Ford, 1919 Includes music The Publishers Weekly, 1914 The Forest of Swords: A Story of Paris and the Marne Joseph Alexander Altsheler, 2010-01-01 John Scott and Philip Lannes walked together down a great boulevard of Paris. The young American's heart was filled with grief and anger. The Frenchman felt the same grief but mingled with it was a fierce burning passion so deep and bitter that it took a much stronger word than anger to describe it. Both had heard that morning the mutter of cannon on the horizon and they knew the German conquerors were advancing. They were always advancing. Nothing had stopped them. The metal and masonry of the defenses at Liège had crumbled before their huge guns like china breaking under stone. The giant shells had scooped out the forts at Maubeuge. Maubeuge the untakable as if they had been mere eggshells and the mighty Teutonic host came on almost without a check. John had read of the German march on Paris nearly a half century before how everything had been made complete by the genius of Bismarck and von Moltke how the ready had sprung upon and crushed the unready but the present swoop of the imperial eagle seemed far more vast and terrible than the earlier rush could have been. A month and the legions were already before the City of Light. Men with glasses could see from the top of the Eiffel Tower the gray ranks that were to hem in devoted Paris once more and the government had fled already to Bordeaux. It seemed that everything was lost before the war was fairly begun. The coming of the English army far too small in numbers had availed nothing. It had been swept up with the others escaping from capture or destruction only by a hair and was now driven back with the French on the capital. John had witnessed two battles and in neither had the Germans stopped.

long Disregarding their own losses they drove forward immense overwhelming triumphant He felt yet their very physical weight pressing upon him crushing him giving him no time to breathe The German war machine was magnificent invincible and for the fourth time in a century the Germans the exulting Kaiser at their head might enter Paris The Emperor himself might be nothing mere sound and glitter but back of him was the greatest army that ever trod the planet taught for half a century to believe in the divine right of kings and assured now that might and right were the same Every instinct in him revolted at the thought that Paris should be trodden under foot once more by the conqueror The great capital had truly deserved its claim to be the city of light and leading and if Paris and France were lost the whole world would lose He could never forget the unpaid debt that his own America owed to France and he felt how closely interwoven the two republics were in their beliefs and aspirations
