These authors suggested that people might perceive that their own behavior is more consistent with the values of the target group than it actually is. This perception might be a function of a number of factors, including the salience of

The recently published 2004-2005 survey was the first to include data on the impact of the 2003-2004 flu season on the health care system. The survey found that the 2003-2004 flu season had a significant impact on the health care system, with a 10% increase in hospital admissions and a 15% increase in emergency department visits.
