The Political Space of Art Benoît Dillet, Tara Puri, 2016-05-18 This book studies the tension between arts and politics in four contemporary artists from different countries working with different media The film directors Luc and Jean Pierre Dardenne film parts of their natal city to refer to specific political problems in interpersonal relations The novelist Arundhati Roy uses her poetic language to make room for people's desires her fiction is utterly political and her political essays make place for the role of narratives and poetic language Ai Weiwei uses references to Chinese history to give consistency to its economic miracle Finally Burial's electronic music is firmly rooted in a living breathing London built to create a sound that is entirely new and yet hauntingly familiar These artists create in their own way a space for politics in their works and their oeuvre but their singularity comes together as a desire to reconstruct the political space within art from its ruins These ruins were brought by the disenchantment of 1970s the end of art postmodernism and the rise of design marketing and communication Each artwork bears the mark of the resistance against the depoliticisation of society and the arts at once rejecting cynicism and idealism referring to themes and political concepts that are larger than their own domain This book focuses on these productive tensions

Red Enlightenment Graham Jones, 2023-05-09 Why we need a materialist spirituality for the secular left and how to build one The left commonly rejects religion and spirituality as counter revolutionary forces citing Marx's famous dictum that religion is the opium of the people Yet forms of spirituality have motivated struggles throughout history ranging from medieval peasant uprisings and colonial slave revolts to South American liberation theology and the US civil rights movement And in a world where religion is growing and political movements are ridden with conflict burnout and failure what can the left learn from religion Red Enlightenment argues not only for a deepened understanding of religious matters but calls for the secular left to develop its own spiritual perspectives It proposes a materialist spirituality built from socialist and scientific sources finding points of contact with the global history of philosophy and religion From cybernetics to liberation theology from ancient Indian and Chinese philosophy to Marxist dialectical materialism from traditional religious practices to contemporary art music and film Red Enlightenment sets out a plausible secular spirituality a new socialist praxis and a utopian vision

Mad Dogs and Englishness Lee Brooks, Mark Donnelly, Richard Mills, 2017-10-19 Mad Dogs and Englishness connects English popular music with questions about English national identities featuring essays that range across Bowie and Burial PJ Harvey Bishi and Tricky The later years of the 20th century saw a resurgence of interest in cultural and political meanings of Englishness in ways that continue to resonate now Pop music is simultaneously on the outside and inside of the ensuing debates It can be used as a mode of commentary about how meanings of Englishness circulate socially But it also produces those meanings often underwriting claims about English national cultural distinctiveness and superiority This book's expert contributors use trans national and trans disciplinary perspectives to provide historical and contemporary commentaries about pop's complex relationships with Englishness Each chapter is based on original research and the essays comprise the best single volume available on pop and the English imaginary

Rethinking Utopia David M. Bell, 2017-01-20 Over five hundred years since it was named utopia remains a vital concept for understanding and challenging the world's we inhabit even in or rather because of the condition of post utopianism that supposedly permeates them In Rethinking Utopia David M Bell offers a diagnosis of the present through the lens of utopia and then by rethinking the concept through engagement with utopian studies a variety of radical theories and the need for decolonizing praxis shows how utopianism might work within against and beyond that which exists in order to provide us with hope for a better future He proposes paying a subversive fidelity to utopia in which its three constituent terms good eu place topos and no one are rethought to assert the importance of immanent affective relations The volume engages with a variety of practices and forms to articulate such a utopianism including popular education critical pedagogy musical improvisation and utopian literature The problems as well as the possibilities of this utopianism are explored although the problems are often revealed to be possibilities provided they are subject to material challenge Rethinking Utopia offers a way of thinking about and perhaps realising utopia that helps overcome some of the binary oppositions structuring much thinking about the topic It allows utopia to be thought in terms of place and process affirmation and negation and the real and the not yet It engages with the spatial and affective turns in the social sciences without ever uncritically being subsumed by them and seeks to make connections to indigenous cosmologies It is a cautious careful critical work punctuated by both pessimism and hope and a refusal to accept the finality of this or any world
