Ames, 2024-10-01 In Living Chinese Philosophy Roger T Ames uses comparative cultural hermeneutics as a method for contrasting classical Greek ontology the science of being in itself with classical Chinese zoetology the art of living which is made explicit in the Yijing or

Book of Changes Parmenides Plato and Aristotle give us a substance ontology grounded in being qua being or being per se to on he on that guarantees a permanent and unchanging subject as the substratum for the human experience This substratum or essence includes its purpose for being telos and defines the what it means to be a thing of this kind eidos of any particular thing thus setting a closed exclusive boundary and the strict identity necessary for a particular thing to be this and not that In the Book of Changes we find a vocabulary that makes explicit cosmological assumptions that are a stark alternative to this substance ontology It also provides the interpretive context for the canonical texts by locating them within a holistic organic and ecological worldview To provide a meaningful contrast with this fundamental assumption of on or being we might borrow the Greek notion of zoe or life and create the neologism zoe tology as the art of living shengshenglung This cosmology begins from living sheng itself as the motive force behind change and gives us a world of boundless becomings not things that are but events that are happening a contrast between an ontological conception of human beings and a process conception of what the author calls human becomings

Technology, Gender and History in Imperial China Francesca Bray,2013-06-19 What can the history of technology contribute to our understanding of late imperial China Most stories about technology in pre modern China follow a well worn plot in about 1400 after an early ferment of creativity that made it the most technologically sophisticated civilisation in the world China entered an era of technical lethargy and decline But how are we to reconcile this tale which portrays China in the Ming and Qing dynasties as a dying giant that had outgrown its own strength with the wealth of counterevidence affirming that the country remained rich vigorous and powerful at least until the end of the eighteenth century Does this seeming contradiction mean that the stagnation story is simply wrong or perhaps that technology was irrelevant to how imperial society worked Or does it imply that historians of technology should ask better questions about what technology was what it did and what it meant in pre modern societies like late imperial China In this book Francesca Bray explores subjects such as technology and ethics technology and gendered subjectivities both female and male and technology and statecraft to illuminate how material settings and practices shaped topographies of everyday experience and ideologies of government techniques of the self and technologies of the subject Examining technologies ranging from ploughing and weaving to drawing pictures building a house prescribing medicine or composing a text this book offers a rich insight into the interplay between the micro and macro politics of everyday life and the workings of governmentality in late imperial China showing that gender principles were woven into the very fabric of empire from cosmology and ideologies of rule to the material foundations of the state and the everyday practices of the domestic sphere This authoritative text will be welcomed by students and scholars of Chinese history as well as those working on global history and the histories of gender technology and agriculture Furthermore it will be of great use to those interested in social and cultural anthropology and material culture

The Oxford Handbook of Chinese Cinemas Carlos Rojas, Eileen Chow, 2013-03-13 What does it mean for a cinematic work to be Chinese Does it refer specifically to a work's subject or does it also reflect considerations of language ethnicity nationality ideology or political orientation Such questions make any single approach to a vast field like Chinese cinema difficult at best Accordingly The Oxford Handbook of Chinese Cinemas situates the term more broadly among various different phases genres and distinct national configurations while taking care to address the consequences of grouping together so many disparate histories under a single banner Offering both a platform for cross disciplinary dialogue and a mapping of Chinese cinema as an expanded field this Handbook presents thirty three essays by leading researchers and scholars intent on yielding new insights and new analyses using three different methodologies Chapters in Part I investigate the historical periodizations of the field through changing notions of national and political identity all the way from the industry s beginnings in the 1920s up to its current forms in contemporary Hong Kong Taiwan and the global diaspora Chapters in Part II feature studies centered on the field s taxonomical formalities including such topics as the role of the Chinese opera in technological innovation the political logic of the Maoist film and the psychoanalytic formula of the kung fu action film Finally in Part III focus is given to the structural elements that comprise a work s production distribution and reception to reveal the broader cinematic apparatuses within which these works are positioned Taken together the multipronged approach supports a wider platform beyond the geopolitical and linguistic limitations in existing scholarship Expertly edited to illustrate a representative set of up to date topics and approaches The Oxford Handbook of Chinese Cinemas provides a vital addition to a burgeoning field still in its formative stages
