Cohen, Joseph Thomas Scheinfeldt, 2013-05-13 An exploration of ongoing efforts to rebuild scholarly infrastructure Using Digital Humanities in the Classroom Claire Battershill, Shawna Ross, 2022-03-24 Rooted in the day to day experience of teaching and written for those without specialist technical knowledge this is a new edition of the go to guide to using digital tools and resources in the humanities classroom In response to the rapidly changing nature of the field this new edition has been updated throughout and now features A brand new Preface accounting for new developments in the broader field of DH pedagogy New chapters on Collaborating and on Teaching in a Digital Classroom New sections on collaborating with other teachers teaching students with learning differences explaining the benefits of digital pedagogy to your students and advising graduate students about the technologies they need to master New advanced activities and advanced assignment sections including bots vlogging crowd sourcing digital storytelling web scraping critical making automatic text generation and digital media art Expanded chapter bibliographies and over two dozen tables offering practical advice on choosing software programs Accompanied by a streamlined companion website which has been entirely redesigned to answer commonly asked questions quickly and clearly this is essential reading for anyone looking to incorporate digital tools and resources into their daily teaching Open Access and the Future of Scholarly Communication Kevin L. Smith, Katherine A. Dickson, 2016-10-05 It is impossible to imagine the future of academic libraries without an extensive consideration of open access the removal of price and permission barriers from scholarly research online As textbook and journal subscription prices continue to rise improvements in technology make online dissemination of scholarship less expensive and faculty recognize the practical and philosophical appeal of making their work available to wider audiences As a consequence libraries have begun to consider a wide variety of open access flavors and business models These new possibilities have significant impact on both library services and collection policies and the call for new skills within library staffing Volume 9 of the series Creating the 21st Century Academic Library is the first of two addressing the topic of open access in academic libraries and focuses on policy and infrastructure for libraries that wish to provide leadership on their campus in the transition to more open forms of scholarship Chapters in the book discuss how to make the case for open access on campus as well as the political and policy implications of libraries that themselves want to become publishing entities Infrastructure issues are also addressed including metadata standards and research management services Also considered here is how interlibrary loan preservation and the library's role in providing textbooks support the concept of open access It is hoped that this volume and the series in general will be a valuable and exciting addition to the discussions and planning surrounding the future directions services and careers in the 21st century academic library Bodies of Information Elizabeth Losh, Jacqueline Wernimont, 2019-01-08 A wide ranging interconnected

Technology and the Historian

Adam Crymble, 2021-04-13 Charting the evolution of practicing digital history Historians have seen their field transformed by the digital age Research agendas teaching and learning scholarly communication the nature of the archive all have undergone a sea change that in and of itself constitutes a fascinating digital history Yet technology's role in the field's development remains a glaring blind spot among digital scholars Adam Crymble mines private and web archives social media and oral histories to show how technology and historians have come together Using case studies Crymble merges histories and philosophies of the field separating issues relevant to historians from activities in the broader digital humanities movement Key themes include the origin myths of digital historical research a history of mass digitization of sources how technology influenced changes in the curriculum a portrait of the self learning system that trains historians and the problems with that system how blogs became a part of outreach and academic writing and a roadmap for the continuing study of history in the digital era

Seeing the Past with Computers Kevin Kee, Timothy J Compeau, 2019-01-24 Recent developments in computer technology are providing historians with new ways to see and seek to hear touch or smell traces of the past Place based augmented reality applications are an increasingly common feature at heritage sites and museums allowing historians to create immersive multifaceted learning experiences Now that computer vision can be directed at the past research involving thousands of images can recreate lost or destroyed objects or environments and discern patterns in vast datasets that could not be perceived by the naked eye Seeing the Past with Computers is a collection of twelve thought pieces on the current and potential uses of augmented reality and computer vision in historical research teaching and presentation The experts gathered here reflect upon their experiences working with new technologies share their ideas for best practices and assess the implications of and imagine future possibilities for new methods of historical study Among the experimental topics they explore are the use of augmented reality that empowers students to challenge the presentation of historical material in their textbooks the application of seeing computers to unlock unusual cultural knowledge such as the secrets of vaudevillian stage magic hacking facial recognition technology to reveal victims of racism in a century old Australian archive and rebuilding the soundscape of an Iron Age village with aural augmented reality This volume is a valuable resource for scholars and students of history and the digital humanities more broadly It will inspire them to apply innovative methods to open new paths for conducting and sharing their own research
