Situated Practices of Strategic Planning Louis Albrechts, Alessandro Balducci, Jean Hillier, 2016-07-22 All over the world societies are facing a number of major problems New developments challenges and opportunities cause these issues and yet cases tell us that traditional spatial planning responses and tools are often insufficient to tackle these problems and challenges Situated Practices of Strategic Planning draws together examples from across the globe from France to Australia from Nigeria to the United States as it observes international comparisons of the strategic planning process Many approaches and policies used today fail to capture the dynamics of urban regional transformation and are more concerned with maintaining an existing social order than challenging and transforming it Stewarded by a team of highly regarded and experienced researchers this book gives a synthetic view of the process of change and frames future directions of development It is unique for its combination of analysis of international case studies and reflection on critical nodes and features in strategic planning This volume will be of interest to students who study regional planning academics professional planners and policy makers The Political Economy of Megaprojects in Asia Hyun Bang Shin,Dong-Wan Gimm,2025-02-18 This book offers a comprehensive analysis of how the developmental goals of Asian states are reflected in large scale projects and how various actors both realize and challenge these goals The rise of Asian economies has spurred the proliferation of megaprojects through large scale resource mobilization necessitating varying degrees of state intervention Despite neoliberal pressures these projects remain linked to national developmental aspirations driven by domestic transnational or combined pro growth interests and serve multiple political purposes The book advances the argument that megaprojects embody the dynamics of multiscalar strategic relations that determine the process and outcome of urbanization These projects create iconic landmarks new towns central business districts and infrastructure showcasing intertwined political and economic interests By examining contemporary megaprojects in China South Korea Taiwan India Malaysia and Turkey the contributing authors reveal the complexity of urbanizing forces and their multiscalar nature in shaping the built environment and shed light on the intricate interplay of state strategies economic needs and sociopolitical forces that influence urban landscapes This interdisciplinary work provides a nuanced understanding of the political economy underpinning Asian urbanization and contributes to ongoing debates on urban development state society relations and the production of space in the context of globalization Chapter 1 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license The Report: Myanmar 2014 Oxford Business Group,2014-03-03 The Golden Land officially known as the Republic of the Union of Myanmar and formerly as Burma has undergone dramatic reforms in recent years under the administration of President U Thein Sein The rapid transition from a military junta to an open economy has surprised the global community and will see Myanmar assume the ASEAN chair for the first time in 2014 Known as the last frontier market Myanmar is rich in natural resources and has an established extractive industries sector with one of the world s oldest continuously producing oil fields The country also enjoys significant mineral resources which remain greatly under explored by international mining firms something the government is proactively trying to change The easing of economic sanctions has accelerated the nation s economic growth but Myanmar still faces political challenges including ongoing ethnic conflict and religious tensions However with greater access to international markets and a growing number of business opportunities investors are cautiously optimistic about the country s future Water Reuse Policies for Potable Use Cecilia Tortajada,Choon Nam Ong,2018-10-11 As water demand has increased globally and resources have become more limited because of physical scarcity over exploitation and pollution it has been necessary to develop more options for water supplies These options include the production at large scale of high quality reused water from municipal sources for potable uses Their economic social and environmental benefits have been many as they have addressed supply scarcity efficient resource use and environmental and public health considerations This book includes discussions on potable water reuse history emerging contaminants and public health public private partnerships in the water reuse sector regulatory frameworks for reused water in the United States and Europe experiences in Australia China in general and Beijing in particular Singapore and Windhoek narratives and public acceptance and perceptions of alternative water sources The main constraints on implementation of water reuse projects in different parts of the world seem to have been lack of full public support due to perceived health hazards and environmental impacts A main handicap has been that governments and water utilities have been slow to understand public concerns and perceptions After several backlashes public information communication and awareness campaigns broader participation and educational programmes have become integral parts of development policy and decision making frameworks

Beyond the Networked City Olivier Coutard, Jonathan Rutherford, 2015-12-14 Cities around the world are undergoing profound changes In this global era we live in a world of rising knowledge economies digital technologies and awareness of environmental issues The so called modern infrastructural ideal of spatially and socially ubiquitous centrally governed infrastructures providing exclusive homogeneous services over extensive areas has been the standard of reference for the provision of basic essential services such as water and energy supply This book argues that after decades of undisputed domination this ideal is being increasingly questioned and that the network ideology that supports it may be waning In order to begin exploring the highly diverse fluid and unstable landscapes emerging beyond the networked city this book identifies dynamics through which a break with previous configurations has been operated and new brittle zones of socio technical controversy through which urban infrastructure and its wider meaning are being negotiated and fought over It uncovers across a diverse set of urban contexts new ways in which processes of urbanization and infrastructure production are being combined with crucial sociopolitical implications through shifting political economies of infrastructure which rework resource distribution and value creation through new infrastructural spaces and territorialities which rebundle socio technical systems for particular interests and claims and through changing offsets between individual and collective appropriation experience and mobilization of infrastructure With contributions from leading authorities in the field and drawing on theoretical advances and original empirical material this book is a major contribution to an ongoing infrastructural turn in urban studies and will be of interest to all those concerned
