Growing Old in Early Modern Europe Erin J. Campbell, 2017-09-29 The goal of the twelve essays in this volume contributed by scholars in the fields of history literature art history and medicine is to enrich our understanding of cultural discourses on ageing in early modern Europe While a number of books examine old age in other eras and a few touch on the early modern period this is the first to focus explicitly on representations of ageing in Europe from 1350 1700 These studies invite the reader to take a closer look at images of ageing they show that representations are embedded in specific communities life situations and structures of power As well the book explores how representations of old age function in various and often surprising ways as repositories of socio cultural anxieties as strategies of self fashioning and as instruments of ideology capable of disciplining the body and the body politic Since this book is about how old age as a cultural category was produced and maintained through representation the essays in this volume are organised thematically across geographic disciplinary and media boundaries to foreground the politics and poetics of representational strategies The contributors to this collection show that our understanding not only of ageing but also of power subjectivity gender sexuality and the body is enriched by the study of cultural representations of old age Through sensitive and sophisticated readings of a wide range of sources these papers collectively demonstrate the formative influence and generative force of images of old age within early modern European culture

Old Age in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance Albrecht

Growing Old in a Better World Robert Troschitz,2024-09-23 As utopias question social ills and express human wants and unfulfilled dreams they offer insights into the problems desires and ideals of a certain time This book uses this lens to examine cultural representations of ageing and old age in utopian writings from the Renaissance till today The individual chapters offer detailed analyses and interpretations of numerous utopias from Thomas More's Utopia 1516 to contemporary science fiction Through close readings the book explores age related fears and ideals and investigates how perceptions of ageing and the life course as well as attitudes towards older people have developed over the centuries Covering a large time span and a broad range of different utopias the book identifies long term developments and also puts certain dreams such as that of ever lasting youth into a wider perspective It thus enriches both our understanding of the cultural history of ageing and the history of utopian thought The book will appeal to scholars and students from the fields of cultural gerontology and utopian studies as well as literary studies and cultural history more generally

Hess,1980 Living - Participating - Growing Old Anton Amann,2023-01-24 Life must be understood as the result of evolution and human life as the emergence of the species Sapiens from the genus Homo of the family of apes If the emergence of human life as an evolutionary fact is coupled with the notion of social life we are referred to the constructive production of human life forms of which social participation is an integral part On the one hand participation is tied back to the phylogenesis of the species Sapiens but on the other hand it has to be newly acquired and practiced by every human being in the process of ontogenesis depending on the environment Participation in old age is a separate specification of the conditions of this process and can be illustrated on the basis of a large number of empirical findings This book is a translation of an original German edition The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence machine translation by the service DeepL.com A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content so that the book will read stylistically differently from a conventional translation
