

HAWAII EARLY LEARNING PROFILE (HELP) ACTIVITY GUIDE

Introduction

The Hawaii Early Learning Profile (HELP) is a comprehensive assessment tool designed to measure the developmental progress of young children in Hawaii.

Key Features:
- Designed for use by early childhood educators and parents.
- Covers a wide range of developmental domains.
- Provides a clear picture of a child's current abilities and areas for growth.

Developmental Domains and Indicators

The HELP assesses children's development across several domains, each with specific indicators. These domains include:

- Communication: Understanding and using language.
- Physical Development: Gross and fine motor skills.
- Personal and Social: Interactions with others and self.
- Problem Solving: Cognitive abilities and reasoning.
- Approaches to Learning: Attitudes and skills for learning.

How to Use the HELP

The HELP is used by observing and recording a child's behavior in various settings. It is a continuous process that allows educators and parents to track a child's progress over time. The results are used to plan individualized learning experiences for each child.

How to Record and Report Results

Results are recorded on the HELP form, which includes a checklist of indicators. The form is designed to be easy to use and provides a clear way to document a child's performance. Reports are then generated based on the recorded data, providing a summary of the child's overall development and specific areas of strength and need.

Interpreting the Results

The results of the HELP are interpreted in relation to established norms and standards. This helps educators and parents understand where a child stands compared to other children of the same age. The results are used to identify areas where a child may need additional support or enrichment.

Using the Results to Plan

The results of the HELP are used to plan individualized learning experiences for each child. This involves setting specific goals and objectives for the child's development. The plan is then implemented through various activities and interventions designed to support the child's growth.

Conclusion

The HELP is a valuable tool for assessing and supporting the development of young children in Hawaii. It provides a clear picture of a child's current abilities and areas for growth, and is used to plan individualized learning experiences. The results are used to track progress and ensure that each child is receiving the support they need to thrive.

Appendix A: Sample Results

This appendix provides examples of how the HELP form is filled out. It includes sample data for a child named 'John Doe', showing his performance across various indicators. This helps users understand how to interpret the results and how to use the form.

Appendix B: Glossary

This appendix provides definitions for key terms used in the HELP. It includes terms such as 'developmental domain', 'indicator', 'norm', and 'standard'. This helps users understand the language used in the HELP and ensures that everyone is using the same terminology.

Appendix C: Additional Resources

This appendix provides information about other resources available to users of the HELP. It includes links to websites, books, and other materials that can be used to support a child's development. This helps users find additional support and resources for their work.
