One student dressed as an archaeologist labels Peruvian "artifacts" for a museum-style exhibit about Machu Picchu while another does the same for an exhibit about Pompeii.

Students ready to begin to share a presentation on plants of the cloud forest. Two more students set up their tasting tray featuring ingredients originated in the rain forest; their display includes information on the art of harvesting these ingredients.

A student prepares to read a book they have written about why a crocodile makes a good pet.

A student, carrying a soccer ball, gears up to share the story of his community's soccer skills, and talk about how soccer has changed the world.

A group of students arranges a display of their tip sheets, which they used to inform the public about a variety of natural disasters and how to survive them.

After reading, research, and preparation, everyone is ready to share what they've learned at the Magic Tree House Research Fair.
