Working Women into the Borderlands Sonia Hernández, 2014-02-18 In Working Women into the Borderlands author Sonia Hernández sheds light on how women's labor was shaped by US capital in the northeast region of Mexico and how women's labor activism simultaneously shaped the nature of foreign investment and relations between Mexicans and Americans As capital investments fueled the growth of heavy industries in cities and ports such as Monterrey and Tampico women's work complemented and strengthened their male counterparts labor in industries which were historically male dominated As Hernández reveals women laborers were expected to maintain their proper place in society and work environments were in fact gendered and class based Yet these prescribed notions of class and gender were frequently challenged as women sought to improve their livelihoods by using everyday forms of negotiation including collective organizing labor arbitration boards letter writing creating unions assuming positions of confianza trustworthiness and by migrating to urban centers and or crossing into Texas Drawing extensively on bi-national archival sources newspapers and published records Working Women into the Borderlands demonstrates convincingly how women's labor contributions shaped the development of one of the most dynamic and contentious borderlands in the globe
