Spencer,2018-11-01 Studies of comparative classroom practice in the teaching of secondary English are limited especially when it comes to exploration of the day to day practice of English teachers in the secondary classroom This book presents a case study analysis of secondary classroom practice in three countries Canada England and Scotland Each country has had different degrees of state involvement within the secondary English curriculum over the last twenty years England has had the highest degree of state involvement in that it has had several statutory national curricula and a variety of assessment regimes Scotland has had a non statutory curriculum and no national tests and Canada has had no national curriculum at all with education being determined at province level and each province varying its policies The research adopts a case study approach involving both classroom observation and interviews with teachers Through this the authors explore the impact of state involvement on the reality of what happens in secondary English classrooms The book invites readers to consider the applicability of the findings to their own contexts to examine their own practice in the light of this and to consider the nature of the relationships between policy personal belief and practice in the teaching of English

Earning and Learning Susan E. Mayer,Paul E. Peterson,2010-12-01 A Brookings Institution Press and Russell Sage Foundation publication Education is one of the largest sectors of the U S economy yet scholars educators policymakers and parents do not agree about what the money spent on education really buys In particular they do not agree on how much education improves children s ability to learn or whether the things children learn in school truly improve their chances for success as adults If schooling increases how much students know and what they know does pay off later then it is important to ask what schools can do to increase students learning and earning The essays in this book report estimates of the effects of learning on earnings and other life outcomes They also examine whether particular aspects of schooling such as the age at which children begin school classroom size and curriculum or structural reform such as national or statewide examinations or school choice affect learning Taken together their findings suggest that liberals are correct in saying that more investment is needed in early education that class sizes should be further reduced and that challenging national or state standards should be established But they also provide support for conservatives who ask for a more demanding curriculum and greater school choice Contributors include John Bishop Eric Hanushek James Heckman Christopher Jencks Caroline Minter Hoxby Fred Mosteller and Christopher Winship

Evaluating Achievement of Senior High School Students in Canada Lenora Perry Fagan,Dana Spurrell,1995 In Canada today there is a clear move toward a more outcomes based education system This report examines the state of high school student assessment and reviews standards and accountability strategies It reports on the policies programs and initiatives in all provincial ministries or departments of education and a sample of school boards across the country Data were derived from a telephone survey of departmental ministerial representatives from all 10 provinces and the 2 territories and from a questionnaire that was mailed to 279 school boards A total of 140 boards responded a 50 percent response rate Data show that both boards and ministries are putting more emphasis on the development of comprehensive policies to cover all aspects of student evaluation There is some movement away from relying on paper and pencil testing as the sole means of evaluation the use of more authentic performance based approaches and a greater variety of assessment techniques are being promoted Some of the best practices in high school evaluation involve use of a broad range of assessment methods introduction of or improvements to provincial examinations greater use of summative and formative evaluations greater emphasis on modifying evaluation for special needs students use of performance based assessment and more reporting to parents and the public Thirteen tables are included Appendices contain copies of the two questionnaires and selected school board material Contains 19 references LMI
