

Manly Jobs

cleaning up

Dishwashing can be a reasonable task or an ongoing nightmare. Teach yourself and your boys and men how to cope with this inevitable burden. If you didn't learn early on to clean up as you go along, please start now. I cannot emphasize this enough: A clean, well-ordered kitchen translates to a tidy, well-ordered mind for cooking.

It's a known, proven, scientifically accurate fact that men simply do not naturally recognize a mess or full garbage cans when staring it directly in the face. For an example, Teach, wash, and hose your boys to clean up after themselves as early and as often as possible. If you don't, they might become that annoying family member: drunken roommate, or instigator of relationship disaster later. If you've inherited an adult male lacking in cleanup skills, your task is a harder one, but not impossible.

Figure out the best ways to clean and dry the dishes and tidy up the kitchen, whether you're working in a tiny studio apartment or a big house, ask yourself, "What's the plan?"

Basic cleaning

- Empty the garbage when it's full (and it always is), someone has to take it out and put it in a new garbage bag. As you clean up, dishes will need dishwashing, but we compile and recyle accessible recycling materials, a plastic bin, one labeled for waste and one for plastic, and give them next periodic cleaning, and, though please before dishwashing.
- Wipe the counter (wipe a clean sponge with a barkeep material, a plastic, stainless steel, dish soap, and a couple drops, dry towels or hand).
- Wash if you have a dishwasher. Fill a bowl or a basin with hot soapy water and put it in the sink. Soak the utensils, dry side down, in the hot water with a little and then wash. If not, return the dirty load for manual cleaning.
- Wash your boys how to efficiently load and unload a dishwasher. It doesn't matter naturally to them. They think the crystal glasses are perfectly fine loaded next to a heavy metal one, neither of which belongs in a dishwasher. Scrape off food particles and lightly rinse plates then load side by side, just after sink, in the bottom rack of the dishwasher. Cups and glasses are best next to each other in the top rack. Don't forget to rinse utensils into the silverware caddy or the soapy water won't circulate and clean. Start the dishwasher only when it is completely full. Empty the same way you loaded, gently stacked back in the cabinet, glasses, tea, and silverware back to their own rows in the silverware drawer. Some folks use coffee forks, but with the knives or spoons.
- Boys want to have a dishwasher that makes them to think they cooked dry pots, and pots will get clean in a dishwasher even when that a house being loaded to clean by hand or use by daily dry pots and even must be cleaned by hand. Load in a little water, soapy water first. Add a hot plastic container (soapy water) to fill the loaded pot off the bottom of the pot, then use the rubber or springs, or food bits don't get clump together in the mesh.
