Eizaburo of Tokyo Imperial University adopted an Akita puppy he named Hachiko Each evening Hachiko greeted Ueno on his return to Shibuya Station In May 1925 Ueno died while giving a lecture Every day for over nine years the Akita waited at Shibuya Station eventually becoming nationally and even internationally famous for his purported loyalty A year before his death in 1935 the city of Tokyo erected a statue of Hachiko outside the station The story of Hachiko reveals much about the place of dogs in Japan's cultural imagination In the groundbreaking Empire of Dogs Aaron Herald Skabelund examines the history and cultural significance of dogs in nineteenth and twentieth century Japan beginning with the arrival of Western dog breeds and new modes of dog keeping which spread throughout the world with Western imperialism He highlights how dogs joined with humans to create the modern imperial world and how in turn imperialism shaped dogs' bodies and their relationship with humans through its impact on dog breeding and dog keeping practices that pervade much of the world today In a book that is both enlightening and entertaining Skabelund focuses on actual and metaphorical dogs in a variety of contexts the rhetorical pairing of the Western colonial dog with native canines subsequent campaigns against indigenous canines in the imperial realm the creation maintenance and in some cases restoration of Japanese dog breeds including the Shiba Inu the mobilization of military dogs both real and fictional and the emergence of Japan as a pet superpower in the second half of the twentieth century Through this provocative account Skabelund demonstrates how animals generally and canines specifically have contributed to the creation of our shared history and how certain dogs have subtly influenced how that history is told Generously illustrated with both color and black and white images Empire of Dogs shows that human canine relations often expose how people especially those with power and wealth use animals to define regulate and enforce political and social boundaries between themselves and other humans especially in imperial contexts Chihayafuru Yuki Suetsugu,2018 As this year s Tokyo preliminaries for the All Japan Senior High School Karuta Championship begins Chihaya and the others welcome the newest members of the Mizusawa Karuta Club and strive once more to become the best in Japan A karuta dynasty looking to retake their lost glory a dark horse team fired up for their first time entering the tournament How will Mizusawa react to this row of powerhouse teams they ll need to take on It all started at this tournament for Chihaya and the rest of the Mizusawa High Karuta Club and at last it has come again Writing Okinawa Davinder L.

Bhowmik,2008-08-18 Writing Okinawa is the first comprehensive study in English of Okinawan fiction from it s emergence in the early twentieth century through its most recent permutations It provides readings of major authors and texts set against a carefully researched presentation of the region s political and social history at the same time it thoughtfully engages with current critical perspective with perspectives on subaltern identity colonialism and post colonialism and the nature of regional minority and minor literatures Is Okinawan fiction replete with geographically specific themes such as language loss identity and war a regional literature distinct among Japanese letters for flourishes of local color that offer a reprieve for the urban weary or a minority literature that serves as a site for creative resistance and cultural renewal This question drives the book s argument making it interpretative rather than merely descriptive Not only does the book provide a critical introduction to the major works of Okinawan literature it also argues that Okinawa s writers consciously exploit to good effect the overlap that exists between regional and minority literature In so doing they produce a rich body of work a great deal of which challenges the notion of a unified nation that seamlessly rises from a single language and culture stage of clinical research where experimental models can find an application The only well established operative procedure is surgery on the isolated liver tumor In this area specialized techniques and various intraoperative procedures are discussed
