Criminologists in the Media Mark Wood,Imogen Richards,Mary Iliadis,2022-05-05 Criminologists in the Media presents the results of a cross national study examining the structures that shape criminologists contributions to news and social media discourse Drawing on interviews with criminologists and a survey of 1 211 criminologists working in the US the UK Australia New Zealand Canada Ireland and South Africa this book represents the first cross national study exploring how why and to what extent criminologists working in these countries engage in newsmaking and digital public criminology Through examining the predictors of criminologists appearing in news media the research presented in this book demonstrates that newsmaking practices within criminology are not reflective of equal access interest or opportunity Rather newsmaking operates within fields of power shaped by the political economy of higher education and researchers academic rank gender and areas of research expertise Together these factors generate several situational logics that predispose criminologists to pursue particular courses of action in promoting their personal projects Key among these logics Wood Richards and Iliadis argue are a social logic informing criminologists moral political views on newsmaking and an industrial logic responsive to the demands of academic capitalism and the rise of the entrepreneurial university With its focus on the practicalities challenges and inequities of newsmaking in the post broadcast era Criminologists in the Media will appeal to researchers interested in the public roles of criminology as well as researchers concerned with the challenges of communicating social scientific knowledge beyond the academy

Ageing and Popular Culture Andrew Blaikie,1999-03-04 As the grey market perpetuates the quest for eternal youth the biological realities of deep old age are increasingly denied Ageing and Popular Culture traces the historical emergence of stereotypes of retirement and documents their recent demise arguing that although modernisation marginalisation and medicalisation created rigid age classifications the rise of consumer culture has coincided with a postmodern broadening of options for those in the Third Age With an adroit use of photographs and other visual sources Andrew Blaikie demonstrates that an expanded leisure phase is breaking down barriers between mid and later life At the same time positive ageing also creates new imperatives and new norms with attendant forms of deviance While babyboomers may anticipate a fulfilling retirement none relish decline Has deep old age replaced death as the taboo subject of the late twentieth century If so what might be the consequences

Cultural Gerontology Lars Andersson,2002-11-30

The concept of culture has gained considerable attention within the humanities and social sciences in general and this is certainly true in the field of gerontology The new perspectives thus gained widen the scope of gerontology In this study chapter authors examine the growth of gerontology as a discipline the phenomenon of ageism as a socio cultural concept identity politics in which older persons are perceived as belonging to a subculture and images of the older body in cultural perspective The manner in which gerontology emerged as a discipline was embedded in culturally defined views of aging that had consequences for how it was seen to vary between cultures One consequence was a perception of ageism as a cultural construction Since the 1980s much of the politics of older people is a form of identity politics in which groups are mobilized to further their interests Questions of cultural meanings ascribed to the gendered aging body is a central question for ageism social identity and self image These questions become especially relevant in confrontations with bodily decline and negotiations of intimacy in institutions for older people     Seeking Love in Modern Britain Zoe Strimpel,2020-03-05
