Irregular Afghan Migration to Europe Angeliki Dimitriadi, 2017-07-13 This book examines the issue of irregular transit migration to the EU by presenting the case of the Afghans Focusing on the Afghans that arrive in and seek to move through Greece it highlights the unique problems facing this distinctive migratory movement Recognising that the migratory journey is a continuous interplay of policies and individuals how each responds and adapts the book itself moves between countries policies stories of migrants and the author s own experiences in the field Drawing on extensive empirical research conducted in both Greece and Turkey it explores why such transits occur and the decision making process of the migrants in transit Through the example of Afghan migration this book contributes to broader debates concerning transit migration hospitality and asylum how it is perceived access to it This book presents a timely study of the rise of fortress Europe and the current discourse around refugees and migrants amidst the largest refugee flow since WWII in Europe This book s interdisciplinary approach will make it a valuable resource for policy makers as well as Sociology and Politics scholars Alpine Border Conflicts Cecilia

Vergnano,2024-08-06 Few places are more revealing than the Alps to grasp the uneven EU core periphery dynamics intrinsic to the EU border regime In 2015 the reintroduction of controls at northern Italian borders as a response to asylum seekers mobility gave rise to a series of conflicts contradictions and solidarities which this book explores The ethnographic analysis of the everyday life of the French Italian and Austrian Italian borders makes visible the impacts of governance strategies which promote social polarization to contain potentially subversive moments of disruptions and transgressions By contextualizing the governance of borders and migration in a broader framework which includes the governance of EU states debt Alpine Border Conflicts focuses on the effects of border regimes not only on migrants but also on EU societies Women,

Mobility and Incarceration Rimple Mehta,2018-09-03 This book explores how Bangladeshi women from poor and undereducated semi educated backgrounds who have crossed the Indo Bangladesh border find themselves in prisons serving sentences under the Foreigners Act 1946 Drawing on original fieldwork this book explores these women s understanding of borders and state sovereignty and how the women from conservative rural and semi rural backgrounds which impose a strict moral code adjust to the socio cultural context of an Indian prison where being an inmate is dishonourable in their community This book examines the implicit challenge in these women s action and decisions to these codes of honour to accepted social norms of their religion and community and ultimately the dominantly patriarchal system that marks South Asian society Further it focuses on the negotiations that the Bangladeshi women make with the social and political borders they encounter in the process of crossing the Indo Bangladesh border without requisite documents needed by the state for entry into a foreign land how they cope with the daily challenges of living during their imprisonment in a correctional home and their feelings about their impending return to Bangladesh Women who are apprehended and criminalised for crossing borders must negotiate with not only the normative understanding of borders which is inherently masculine in nature but also the gender biased lens through which female mobility is viewed therefore they not only cross political borders but also social borders This book maps the associations between women s experiences of mobility and incarceration and their linkages with social and political borders and the fraught experiences of being in a foreign territorial space It will be important reading for criminologists sociologists and those engaged in penology women s studies and migration studies

Migration and Mobility in the Ancient Near East and Egypt - the Crossroads IV Ludovica Bertolini, Jana Mynarova, Federico Zangani, 2024-06-15 Movement and mobility represent intertwined concepts that have persisted throughout human history The act of moving from one place to another is however intricately tied to the challenges that hinder it These obstacles can either be natural in origin or the product of human design aimed at constraining the movement of individuals or groups Furthermore movement and mobility can also manifest themselves within society encompassing the fluid shifts of people within the social hierarchy and the transitions between various social groups The transfer of words technologies and religious ideologies often accompanies these human movements The region of ancient Western Asia and northeast Africa serves as a rich repository of evidence for these forms of movement and mobility extensively documented through written sources and material culture The essays collected in this volume variously examine the political dimensions of movement and mobility how ideas concepts and languages move across boundaries and the material evidence for cultural interactions

Extractions M. Nahman, 2013-01-17 Michal Nahman traces different kinds of extraction the practices of human egg harvesting in different national contexts the political economic consequences of such extraction for the women involved and the ways in which this has consequences for nationalism and race or Israeli extraction

Globalization and Human Rights in the Developing World Derrick M. Nault, Shawn L. England, 2011-07-12 Focusing on world regions where human rights abuses are the most serious extensive and sustained this book fills a crucial gap in our knowledge of the difficulties and promise of promoting human rights in our global age

The Borders of Punishment Katja Franko Aas, Mary Bosworth, 2013-07-11 The Borders of Punishment Migration Citizenship and Social Exclusion critically assesses the relationship between immigration control citizenship and criminal justice It reflects on the theoretical and methodological challenges posed by mass mobility and its control and for the first time sets out a particular sub field within criminology the criminology of mobility Drawing together leading international scholars with newer researchers the book systematically outlines why criminology and criminal justice should pay more attention to issues of immigration and border control Contributors consider how traditional criminal justice institutions such as the criminal law police and prisons are being shaped and altered by immigration as well as examining novel forms of penalty such as deportation and detention facilities which have until now seldom featured in criminological studies and textbooks In so doing the book demonstrates that mobility and its control are matters that ought to be central to any understanding of the criminal justice system Phenomena such as the controversial use of immigration law for the purposes of the war on terror closed detention centres deportation and border policing raise in new ways some of the fundamental and enduring questions of criminal justice and criminology What is punishment What is crime What should be the normative and legal foundation for criminalization for police suspicion for the exclusion from the community and for the deprivation of freedom And who is the subject of rights within a society and what is the relevance of citizenship to criminal justice Postcoloniality and Forced Migration Martin

Lemberg-Pedersen, Sharla M. Fett, Lucy Mayblin, Nina Sahraoui, Eva Magdalena Stambøl, 2022-08-23 As the pervasive legacy of colonialism continues to shape global politics this unprecedented book presents case studies of forced migration events from the 18th century to present day across 5 continents Equality in International Society R. Hjorth, 2014-11-18 The author re examines the concept of equality in international society past and present The view that equality necessarily flows from sovereignty is considered a contingent rather than a necessary contention A new framework for equality in international society is sketched out emphasising the normative strength of the principle of equality Migration and Identity in a Post-National World K. Tonkiss, 2015-12-04 Katherine Tonkiss offers a succinct account of constitutional patriotism theory specifically arguing that it involves a commitment to free migration She draws on qualitative research to explore the implications of this claim for the dynamics of post national identity and belonging in local communities The Migration Industry in Asia Michiel Baas, 2019-11-26 This pivot considers the emergence and functioning of the migration industry and commercialization of migration pathways in Asia Grounded in extensive fieldwork and building on empirical data gathered through interactions and interviews with brokers agents and other facilitators of migration it examines the increasing co dependence on entanglement of and overlap between migrants industry and state It considers how for low skilled migrants migration is often not even possible without the involvement of the industry As the opportunity to migrate has opened up to an ever widening group of potential migrants receiving nations have fine tuned their migration infrastructure and programs to facilitate the inflow and timely outflow of the migrants it deems desirable The migration industry plays an active role as mediator between migrants desires and states requirements This pivot focuses on what unites sending and receiving sides of migration going beyond presupposed established networks and offering a clear conceptualization of the contemporary migration industry in Asia A Relational Ethics of Immigration Dan Bulley, 2023-10-31 To understand the ethics of immigration we need to start from the way it is enacted and understood by everyday actors through practices of hospitality and hostility Drawing on feminist and poststructuralist understandings of ethics and hospitality this book offers a new approach to immigration ethics by exploring state and societal responses to immigration from the Global North and South Rather than treating ethics as a determinable code for how we ought to behave toward strangers it explores hospitality as a relational ethics an ethics without moralism that aims to understand and possibly transform the way people already do embrace and deflect obligations and responsibilities to each other Building from specific examples in Colombia Turkey and Tanzania as well as the EU US and UK hospitality is developed as a structural and emotional practice of drawing and redrawing boundaries of inside and outside belonging and non belonging It thereby actively creates a society as a communal space with a particular ethos from a welcoming home to a racialised hostile environment Hospitality is therefore treated as a critical mode of reflecting on how we create a we and relate to others through entangled histories of colonialism displacement friendship and exploitation Only through such a reflective understanding can we seek to transform immigration practices to better reflect the real and aspirational ethos of a society Instead of simple answers removing borders or creating global migration regimes the book argues for grounded negotiations that build from existing local capacities to respond to immigration

Global Rectificatory Justice G. Collste, 2014-12-10 What are the implications of colonialism for a theory of global justice today What does rectificatory justice mean in the light of colonialism What does global rectificatory justice require in practice The author seeks to answer these questions covering a significant gap in the literature on global justice

Global Social Justice Heather Widdows, Nicola Smith, 2013-07-03 This book provides a distinctive multi disciplinary contribution to debates about global justice and global ethics addresses issues including human rights the environment health labour peace building and political participation and sexuality
