Imagining Tomorrow Joseph J. Corn, 1988-03-01 The history of the future is the history of a society's imagination and Imagining Tomorrow takes a lively and informative look at the future as envisioned in the American past These ten original essays explore the impulse to peer into the future particularly into the American dream of a technological utopia Some of the technologies discussed are x rays radio plastics the electric light and nuclear power including Henry Ford's nuclear car Joseph J. Corn is a lecturer in the Program on Values Technology Science and Society at Stanford University Meals to Come Warren James Belasco, 2006 Warren Belasco is a witty wonderfully observant guide to the hopes and fears that every era projects onto its culinary future This enlightening study reads like time travel for foodies Laura Shapiro author of Something From the Oven Reinventing Dinner in 1950s America In his insightful look at human imaginings about their food and its future sufficiency Warren Belasco makes use of everything from academic papers films and fiction to journalism advertising and world's fairs to trace a pattern of public concern over two centuries His wide ranging scholarship humbles all would be futurists by reminding us that ours is not the first generation nor is it likely to be the last to argue inconclusively about whether we can best feed the world with more spoons better manners or a larger pie Truly painless education a wonderful read Joan Dye Gussow author This Organic Life Warren Belasco serves up an intellectual feast brilliantly dissecting two centuries of expectations regarding the future of food and hunger Meals to Come provides an essential guide to thinking clearly about the worrisome question as to whether the world can ever be adequately and equitably fed Joseph J. Corn co author of Yesterday's Tomorrows Past Visions of the American Future This astute sly warmly human critique of the basic belly issues that have absorbed and defined Americans politically socially and economically for the past 200 years is a knockout Warren Belasco's important book crammed with knowledge is absolutely necessary for an understanding of where we are now Betty Fussell author of My Kitchen Wars A History of the Future Peter J. Bowler, 2017-11-02 A wide ranging survey of predictions about the future development and impact of science and technology through the twentieth century

Future Survey Annual 1986 Michael Marien, 1987-01-01 The Neutron's Children Sean F. Johnston, 2012-04-26 The first nuclear engineers emerged from the Manhattan Project in the USA UK and Canada but remained hidden behind security for a further decade Cosseted and cloistered by their governments they worked to explore applications of atomic energy at a handful of national labs This unique bottom up history traces how the identities of these unusually voiceless experts forming a uniquely state managed discipline were shaped in the context of pre war nuclear physics wartime industrial management post war politics and utopian energy programmes Even after their eventual emergence at universities and companies nuclear workers carried the enduring legacy of their origins Their shared experiences shaped not only their identities but our collective memories of the late twentieth century And as illustrated by the Fukushima accident seven decades after the Manhattan project began this book explains why they are still seen conflictingly as selfless heroes or as mistrusted guardians of a malevolent genie

Burdett, 2014-12-05 The rapid advancement of technology has led to an explosion of speculative theories about what the future of humankind may look like These technological futurisms have arisen from significant advances in the fields of nanotechnology biotechnology and information technology and are drawing growing scrutiny from the philosophical and theological communities This text seeks to contextualize the growing literature on the cultural philosophical and religious implications of technological growth by considering technological futurisms such as transhumanism in the context of the long historical tradition of technological dreaming Michael Burdett traces the latent religious sources of our contemporary technological imagination by looking at visionary approaches to technology and the future in seminal technological utopias and science fiction and draws on past theological responses to the technological future with Pierre Teilhard de Chardin and Jacques Ellul Burdett's argument arrives at a contemporary Christian response to transhumanism based around the themes of possibility and promise by turning to the works of Richard Kearney Eberhard Jüngel and Jürgen Moltmann Throughout the author highlights points of correspondence and divergence between technological futurisms and the Judeo Christian understanding of the future

Concrete and Clay Matthew Gandy, 2003-08-29 An interdisciplinary account of the environmental history and changing landscape of New York City In this innovative account of the urbanization of nature in New York City Matthew Gandy explores how the raw materials of nature have been reworked to produce a metropolitan nature distinct from the forms of nature experienced by early settlers The book traces five broad developments the expansion and redefinition of public space the construction of landscaped highways the creation of a modern water supply system the radical environmental politics of the barrio in the late 1960s and early 1970s and the contemporary politics of the environmental justice movement Drawing on political economy environmental studies social theory cultural theory and architecture Gandy shows how New York's environmental history is bound up not only with the upstate landscapes that stretch beyond the city's political boundaries but also with more distant places that reflect the nation's colonial and imperial legacies Using the shifting meaning of nature under urbanization as a framework he looks at how modern nature has been produced through interrelated transformations ranging from new water technologies to changing fashions in landscape design Throughout he considers the economic and ideological forces that underlie phenomena as diverse as the location of parks and the social stigma of dirty neighborhoods
