Language And Social Identity Studies In Interactional Sociolinguistics:

Language and Social Identity John J. Gumperz, 1982 Throughout Western society there are now strong pressures for social and racial integration but in spite of these recent experience has shown that greater intergroup contact can actually reinforce social distinctions and ethnic stereotypes The studies collected here examine from a broad sociological perspective the sorts of face to face verbal exchange that are characteristic of industrial societies and the volume as a whole pointedly demonstrates the role played by communicative phenomena in establishing and reinforcing social identity The method of analysis that has been adopted enables the authors to reveal and examine a centrally important but hitherto little discussed conversational mechanism the subconscious processes of inference that result from situational factors social presuppositions and discourse conventions The theory of conversation and the method of analysis that inform the author s approach are discussed in the first two chapters and the case studies themselves examine interviews counselling sessions and similar formal exchanges involving contacts between a wide range of different speakers South Asians West Indians and native English speakers in Britain English natives and Chinese in South East Asia Afro Americans Asians and native English speakers in the United States and English and French speakers in Canada The volume will be of importance to linguists anthropologists psychologists and others with a professional interest in communication and its findings will have far reaching applications in industrial and community relations and in educational practice

Rapport and the Discursive Co-Construction of Social Relations in Fieldwork Encounters Zane Goebel,2019-08-19 In accounts of ethnographic fieldwork and textbooks on ethnography we often find the notion of rapport used to describe social relationships in the field. Frequently rapport between researcher and researched is invoked as a prerequisite to be achieved before fieldwork can start or used as evidence to judge the value and robustness of an ethnography. With few exceptions and despite regular pleas to do so, ethnographers continue to avoid presenting any discursive evidence of what rapport might look like from an interactional perspective. In a sense the uncritical acceptance of rapport as a fieldwork goal and measure has helped hide the discursive work that goes on in the field. In turn this has privileged ideas about identity as portable rather than portable and emergent and reports of social life as more important than how such reports emerge. Written for all those who engage or plan to engage in ethnographic fieldwork, this collection examines how social relationships dialogically emerge in fieldwork settings.
