Highsmith, 2009-10 Now in the public domain Latin for Beginners by Benjamin L D ooge Ph D was originally published in 1909 The Centurion Edition celebrates the 100th anniversary of the publication of the Latin classic The text has been retypeset and formatted All the original illustrations and plates have been included in black and white While great effort has been made to remain faithful to the original published work some formatting changes were necessary Special vocabularies have been moved from the appendix and placed with their respective lessons Exercises have been reformatted from paragraphs into numbered lists Some of the irregular verb forms are now located in the lesson material in addition to the appendix A new index has been generated As a bonus included after the reading material is the ballad of Horatius from The Lays of Rome by Thomas Babbington Macaulay As this was a classroom text no answer key was or is included with the book

Latin for Beginners (Annotated) Benjamin L. D'Ooge, 2018-02-11 This is an annotated version of the book1 contains an updated biography of the author at the end of the book for a better understanding of the text 2 This book has been checked and corrected for spelling errors To make the course preparatory to C sar at the same time systematic thorough clear and interesting is the purpose of this series of lessons The first pages are devoted to a brief discussion of the Latin language its history and its educational value The body of the book consisting of seventy nine lessons is divided into three parts Part I is devoted to pronunciation quantity accent and kindred introductory essentials Part II carries the work through the first sixty lessons and is devoted to the study of forms and vocabulary together with some elementary constructions a knowledge of which is necessary for the translation of the exercises and reading matter The first few lessons have been made unusually simple to meet the wants of pupils not well grounded in English grammar Part III contains nineteen lessons and is concerned primarily with the study of syntax and of subjunctive and irregular verb forms The last three of these lessons constitute a review of all the constructions presented in the book There is abundant easy reading matter and in order to secure proper concentration of effort upon syntax and translation no new vocabularies are introduced but the vocabularies in Part II are reviewed It is hoped that the following features will commend themselves to teachers The forms are presented in their natural sequence and are given for the most part in the body of the book as well as in a grammatical appendix The work on the verb is intensive in character work in other directions being reduced to a minimum while this is going on The forms of the subjunctive are studied in correlation with the subjunctive constructions The vocabulary has been selected with the greatest care using Lodge's Dictionary of Secondary Latin and Browne's Latin Word List as a basis There are about six hundred words exclusive of proper names in the special vocabularies and these are among the simplest and commonest words in the language More than ninety five per cent of those chosen are Cæsarian and of these more than ninety per cent are used in Cæsar five or more times The few words not Cæsarian are of such frequent occurrence in Cicero Vergil and other authors as to justify their appearance here But teachers desiring to confine word study to Cæsar can easily do so as the Cæsarian words are printed in the vocabularies in distinctive type Concrete nouns have been preferred to abstract root words to compounds and derivatives even when the latter were of more frequent occurrence in Cæsar To assist the memory related English words are added in each special vocabulary To insure more careful preparation the special vocabularies have been removed from their respective lessons and placed by themselves The general vocabulary contains about twelve hundred words and of these above eighty five per cent are found in Cæsar The syntax has been limited to those essentials which recent investigations such as those of Dr Lee Byrne and his collaborators have shown to belong properly to the work of the first year The constructions are presented as far as possible from the standpoint of English the English usage being given first and the Latin compared or contrasted with it Special attention has been given to the constructions of participles the gerund and gerundive and the infinitive in indirect statements Constructions having a logical connection are not separated but are treated together
