Social Psychology of Health and Illness Glenn S. Sanders, Jerry Suls, 2013-02-01 This book describes how and why distant social influences such as socialization practices interpersonal relationships and social organization are often just as important as medical considerations in determining an individual's tendency toward health or illness. The essays describe some of the pathways through which these social influences are exerted and also offer suggestions as to how these influences can be swayed in the direction of good health. The editors' broader aim is to stress the importance of social psychological orientation as a useful conceptual tool for the analysis of health and illness.

History of Multicultural Education Volume 5 Carl A. Grant, Thandeka K. Chapman, 2013-10-23 This benchmark 6 volume set documents, analyzes, and critiques a comprehensive body of research on the history of multicultural education in the U.S. The volumes reflect the tenets of multicultural education: its history, its present, and individuals whose work has contributed significantly to equity and social justice for all citizens. By collecting and providing a framework for key publications spanning the last 30-40 years, this set provides a means of understanding and visualizing the development, implementation, and interpretation of multicultural education in American society. The volumes do not promote any one scholar's or group's vision of multicultural education but include conflicting ideals that inform multiple interpretations. Each volume contains archival documents organized around a specific theme: Conceptual Frameworks and Curricular Content; Foundations and Stratifications; Instruction and Assessment; Policy and Governance; Students and Student Achievement; Teachers and Teacher Education. The historical time line within each volume illustrates the progression of research and theory on its theme and encourages readers to reflect on the changes in language and thinking concerning educational scholarship in that area.

Psychological Perspectives of Helplessness and Control in the Elderly P.S. Fry, 1988-12-01 The past few years have witnessed widespread acceptance of the notion that few elderly individuals are willing to stand by silently in the process of growing old and to relinquish whatever actual controls, autonomy, or control beliefs they had in the past. Increasingly, old age is viewed as the dynamics of growth in mastery, control, and self-efficacy on the one hand, and a relative decline in psychological and physical resources on the other. It is the intent of this volume to communicate both aspects of these changes and to offer a comprehensive review of the cross-fertilization of the field of gerontology and the psychology of reactance, freedom, and control. Leading psychologists and social science researchers from the United States, Canada, and Europe give their views on the meaning and application of control-related constructs having specific implications for the field of human aging. They address themselves to one or more of the major themes, issues, or concerns which currently figure in discussions of control beliefs and control constructs as they apply.

to aging and old age Written primarily for scholars researchers and developmental theorists interested in the complexities and generativity of control constructs and their applications for the psychological well being of older adults the data and issues presented will be equally informative to gero psychologists and mental health professionals concerned with healthy adaptive functioning of the elderly

Mental Health: A Journey from illness to wellness S Makvana, A Patel, A Dhingra, V Parmar, 2016-10-31 The controls used on emotional arousal and cognitive processes are difficult in several societies because of the presence of beliefs in several more issues and forces which influence the bidirectional to and fro journey of effects between mental health and mental illness Human beings in general accept only experiential methods of verifications and approval of reality when they come in contact with their own mental and physical conditions However many may still be influenced by suggestions and produce experiences as per suggestions which may not respond to scientific methods of verifications and corrections Mental health and diseases mainly in the domain of emotional health may therefore be affected by beliefs and psychological effects produced from cognitive processes and cognitive molding of emotions Interventions in the cognitive and emotional domains do often work and changes may be brought out at the psychological and biological levels

The Currents of Lethal Violence N. Prabha Unnithan, Lin Huff-Corzine, Jay Corzine, Hugh P. Whitt, 1994-01-01 Building on past work the authors outline an integrated model for linking suicide and homicide and show how that research from this perspective can further our understanding of violence Specifically they show that research based on this model provides new insights into how structural and cultural factors combine to produce high homicide levels in the American South and cross national difference in lethal violence rates In conclusion they evaluate the model s utility address possible criticisms of this perspective and suggest avenues for further investigations of lethal violence
