Fishes with Funny French Names

Debra Kelly, 2021-12-02 This book tells the story of what happens when an essentially Parisian institution travels and establishes itself in its neighbour's capital city bringing with it French food culture and culinary practices The arrival and evolution of the French restaurant in the British capital is a tale of culinary and cultural exchange and of continuity and change in the development of London's dining out culture Although the main character of this story is the French restaurant this cultural history also necessarily engages with the people who produce purvey purchase and consume that food culture in many different ways and in many different settings in London over a period of some one hundred and fifty years British references to France and to the French are littered with associations with food whether it is desired rejected admired loathed envied disdained from the status of haute cuisine and the restaurants and chefs associated with it to contemporary concerns about food poverty and food waste to dietary habits and the politicisation of food and at every level in between However thinking about the place of the French restaurant in London restaurant and food culture over a long time span in many and varied places and spaces in the capital creates a more nuanced picture than that which may at first seem obvious

Integrating the Packaging and Product Experience in Food and Beverages Peter Burgess, 2016-03-31 Integrating the Packaging and Product Experience in Food and Beverages A Road Map to Consumer Satisfaction focuses on the interrelationship between packaging and the product experience In both industry and academia there has been a growing interest in investigating approaches that capture consumer responses to products that go beyond traditional sensory and liking measures These approaches include assessing consumers emotional responses obtaining temporal measures of liking as well as numerous published articles considering the effect of situation and context in the evaluation of food and beverage products For fast moving consumer goods FMCG products in particular packaging can be considered as a contributor to consumer satisfaction Recent cross modal research illustrated consumers dissatisfaction or delight with a product can be evoked when there is dissonance between the packaging and the product experience The book includes an extensive overview of an adapted satisfaction scale that has been tailored for the food and beverage sector and which identifies varying satisfaction response modes such as contentment pleasure and delight with a product This is an important development as it provides insights about products that can be used to market specific categories and brands of foods and beverages The book demonstrates the value of this approach by bringing together case studies that consider the interrelationships between packaging design shape on pack sensory messages expectations and consumer satisfaction with the product Focuses on the inter relationship between packaging and the product experience specifically in the context of the food and beverage sector Presents the expectancy disconfirmation model of satisfaction which is well developed within the social sciences to the food and beverage sector Contains case studies demonstrating how these practices can be used in industry to better enhance customer s responses to products Includes an extensive overview of an adapted satisfaction scale that has been tailored for the food and beverage sector and which identifies varying satisfaction response modes such as contentment pleasure and delight with a product
