

Captain Cook's Landing at Botany Bay

Account of Captain James Cook

Sunday 19th April 1770

Almost a week had passed since Lieutenant Hicks shouted 'land ahoy' and furnished our discovery of the east coast of New Holland.

Since then, we have sailed the Endeavour steadily northwards, keeping land in sight all the while. We have been kept busy mapping the coastline of this new and mysterious land.

On the morning of Sunday 19th April, we reached a place of great interest. It was a wide but shallow inlet, the immediately dropped anchor off a low headland covered with sand dunes. The great number of shipwrecks caught that morning prompted me to rather uncreatively name this place 'Shipwreck Harbour'.

Around lunchtime we lifted anchor and sailed the Endeavour into the inlet. On either headland, we saw natives.

Soon after we dropped anchor again, a number of fellow sailors and myself set out in a rowboat to investigate. As we drifted toward the shore I said to sailor Isaac Smith, 'Jump out, Isaac,' thus making him the first European to set foot on the jilted east coast of New Holland. We all went followed and waded through the shallow, warm water to the shore.

We all went followed and waded through the shallow, warm water to the shore.

After they had waded across there, from a group of us it is felt that the first one landing alone, this was an old man, the other a younger fellow. We asked them why they could not accept them. Perhaps they had misunderstood what we had said. Doubtless, one of my men then went up.

Cook's Landing Botany Bay

A week, including the night, they did not even look at a number of other men they spent it as a full landing party. I am quite sure over their heads and shoulders.

Of course, we found only a small number of ships to communicate with the group, as they were in our hands.

It is a matter of fact, the first day two men landed our intentions as the first part of the ship. We were in sight of the ship.

History and the Construction of the Child in Early British Children's Literature Jackie C. Horne, 2016-04-22 How did the flat characters of eighteenth century children s literature become round by the mid nineteenth While previous critics have pointed to literary Romanticism for an explanation Jackie C Horne argues that this shift can be better understood by looking to the discipline of history Eighteenth century humanism believed the purpose of history was to teach private and public virtue by creating idealized readers to emulate Eighteenth century children s literature with its impossibly perfect protagonists and its equally imperfect villains echoes history s exemplar goals Exemplar history however came under increasing pressure during the period and the resulting changes in historiographical practice an increased need for reader engagement and the widening of history s purview to include the morals manners and material lives of everyday people find their mirror in changes in fiction for children Horne situates hitherto neglected Robinsonades historical novels and fictionalized histories within the cultural social and political contexts of the period to trace the ways in which idealized characters gradually gave way to protagonists who fostered readers sympathetic engagement Horne s study will be of interest to specialists in children s literature the history of education and book history

Re/reading the past J.R. Martin, Ruth Wodak, 2003-11-17 Re reading the Past is concerned with the discourses of history from the complementary perspectives of Critical Discourse Analysis CDA and Systemic Functional Linguistics SFL The papers in the book stress the discursive construction of the past focussing on the different social narratives which compete for official acknowledgement Issues of collective and cultural memory are addressed reflecting the linguistic turn in the Social Sciences The book covers a range of discourses interpreting texts from popular culture to academic discourse including the construction and evaluation of past events in a variety of places around the world It is especially timely in its focus on the construction of time and value in a post colonial world where history discourses are central to on going processes of reconciliation debates on war crimes and the issues of amnesty and restitution As such the book fills a significant gap in interdisciplinary debates as well as in register and genre analysis and will be of general interest to historians political scientists and discourse analysts as well as students and teachers of ESP English for Specific Purposes and EAP English for Academic Purposes Historical Discourse Caroline Coffin,2009-03-01 An important analysis of the language of time cause and evaluation in historical texts studied by students at secondary school looking at the implications for making meaning in historical writing A Short History of the Mongols George Lane,2018-01-25 The Mongol Empire was the mightiest land empire the world has ever seen At its height it was twice the size of its Roman equivalent For a remarkable century and a half it commanded a population of 100 million people while the rule of Chinggis Genghis Khan marched undefeated from the Pacific Ocean to the Caspian Sea George Lane argues that the Mongols were not only subjugators who swept all before them but one of the great organising forces of world history His book traces the rise of the Great Khan in 1206 to the dissolution of the empire in 1368 by the Ming Dynasty He discusses the unification of the Turko Mongol tribes under Chinggis leadership the establishment of a vigorous imperium whose Pax Mongolica held mastery over the Central Asian steppes imaginative policies of religious pluralism and the rich legacy of the Toluid Empire of Yuan China and Ilkhanate Iran Offering a bold and sympathetic understanding of Mongol history the author shows that commercial expansion cultural assimilation and dynamic political growth were as crucial to Mongol success as desire for conquest
