Handling Emotions In Human Computer Dialogues Handling Emotions In Human Computer Dialogues:

Handling Emotions in Human-Computer Dialogues Johannes Pittermann, Angela Pittermann, Wolfgang Minker, 2009-10-28 In this book a novel approach that combines speech based emotion recognition with adaptive human computer dialogue modeling is described With the robust recognition of emotions from speech signals as their goal the authors analyze the effectiveness of using a plain emotion recognizer a speech emotion recognizer combining speech and emotion recognition and multiple speech emotion recognizers at the same time The semi stochastic dialogue model employed relates user emotion management to the corresponding dialogue interaction history and allows the device to adapt itself to the context including altering the stylistic realization of its speech This comprehensive volume begins by introducing spoken language dialogue systems and providing an overview of human emotions theories categorization and emotional speech It moves on to cover the adaptive semi stochastic dialogue model and the basic concepts of speech emotion recognition Finally the authors show how speech emotion recognizers can be optimized and how an adaptive dialogue manager can be implemented The book with its novel methods to perform robust speech based emotion recognition at low complexity will be of interest to a variety of readers involved in human computer interaction

Towards Adaptive Spoken Dialog Systems Alexander Schmitt, Wolfgang Minker, 2012-09-19 In Monitoring Adaptive Spoken Dialog Systems authors Alexander Schmitt and Wolfgang Minker investigate statistical approaches that allow for recognition of negative dialog patterns in Spoken Dialog Systems SDS The presented stochastic methods allow a flexible portable and accurate use Beginning with the foundations of machine learning and pattern recognition this monograph examines how frequently users show negative emotions in spoken dialog systems and develop novel approaches to speech based emotion recognition using hybrid approach to model emotions The authors make use of statistical methods based on acoustic linguistic and contextual features to examine the relationship between the interaction flow and the occurrence of emotions using non acted recordings several thousand real users from commercial and non commercial SDS Additionally the authors present novel statistical methods that spot problems within a dialog based on interaction patterns The approaches enable future SDS to offer more natural and robust interactions This work provides insights lessons and inspiration for future research and development not only for spoken dialog systems but for data driven approaches to human machine interaction in general

Heisterkamp, 2004-05-14 Human conversational partners are able at least to a certain extent to detect the speaker's or listener's emotional state and may attempt to respond to it accordingly When instead one of the interlocutors is a computer a number of questions arise such as the following To what extent are dialogue systems able to simulate such behaviors Can we learn the mechanisms of emotional behaviors from observing and analyzing the behavior of human speakers How can emotions be automatically recognized from a user's mimics gestures and speech What possibilities does a dialogue system have to express emotions itself And very importantly would emotional system behavior be desirable at all Given the state of ongoing research into incorporating emotions in dialogue systems we found it timely to organize a Tutorial and Research Workshop on Affective Dialogue Systems ADS2004 at Kloster Irsee in Germany during June 14-16 2004 After two successful ISCA Tutorial and Research Workshops on Multimodal Dialogue Systems at the same location in 1999 and 2002 we felt that a workshop focusing on the role of affect in dialogue would be a valuable continuation of the workshop series Due to its interdisciplinary nature the workshop attracted submissions from researchers with very different backgrounds and from many different research areas working on for example dialogue processing speech recognition speech synthesis embodied conversational agents computer graphics animation user modelling tutoring systems cognitive systems and human computer interaction

Interactive Collaborative

Information Systems Robert Babuška, Frans C.A. Groen, 2010-03-22 The increasing complexity of our world demands new perspectives on the role of technology in decision making Human decision making has its limitations in terms of information processing capacity We need new technology to cope with the increasingly complex and information rich nature of our modern society This is particularly true for critical environments such as crisis management and traffic management where humans need to engage in close collaborations with artificial systems to observe and understand the situation and respond in a sensible way We believe that close collaborations between humans and artificial systems will become essential and that the importance of research into Interactive Collaborative Information Systems ICIS is self evident Developments in information and communication technology have radically changed our working environments The vast amount of information available nowadays and the wirelessly networked nature of our modern society open up new opportunities to handle difficult decision making situations such as computer supported situation assessment and distributed decision making To make good use of these new possibilities we need to update our traditional views on the role and capabilities of information systems The aim of the Interactive Collaborative Information Systems project is to develop techniques that support humans in complex information environments and that facilitate distributed decision making capabilities ICIS emphasizes the importance of building actor agent communities close collaborations between human and artificial actors that highlight their complementary capabilities and in which task distribution is flexible and adaptive
