Medieval Illuminators and Their Methods of Work Jonathan James Graham Alexander, 1992-01-01 Who were the medieval illuminators How were their hand produced books illustrated and decorated In this beautiful book Jonathan Alexander presents a survey of manuscript illumination throughout Europe from the fourth to the sixteenth century He discusses the social and historical context of the illuminators' lives considers their methods of work and presents a series of case studies to show the range and nature of the visual sources and the ways in which they were adapted copied or created anew Alexander explains that in the early period Christian monasteries and churches were the main centers for the copying of manuscripts and so the majority of illuminators were monks working in and for their own monasteries From the eleventh century lay scribes and illuminators became increasingly numerous and by the thirteenth century professional illuminators dominated the field During this later period illuminators were able to travel in search of work and to acquire new ideas they joined guilds with scribes or with artists in the cities and their ranks included nuns and secular women Work was regularly collaborative and the craft was learned through an apprenticeship system Alexander carefully analyzes surviving manuscripts and medieval treatises in order to explain the complex and time consuming technical processes of illumination its materials methods tools choice of illustration and execution From rare surviving contracts he deduces the preoccupation of patrons with materials and schedules Illustrating his discussion with examples chosen from religious and secular manuscripts made all over Europe Alexander recreates the astonishing variety and creativity of medieval illumination His book will be a standard reference for years to come Reading the Qur'an in Latin Christendom, 1140-1560 Thomas E. Burman, 2011-06-03

Selected by Choice magazine as an Outstanding Academic Title Most of what we know about attitudes toward Islam in the medieval and early modern West has been based on polemical treatises against Islam written by Christian scholars preoccupied with defending their own faith and attacking the doctrines of others Christian readings of the Qur'an have in consequence typically been depicted as tedious and one dimensional exercises in anti Islamic hostility In Reading the Qur'an in Latin Christendom 1140 1560 Thomas E Burman looks instead to a different set of sources the Latin translations of the Qur'an made by European scholars and the manuscripts and early printed books in which these translations circulated Using these largely unexplored materials Burman argues that the reading of the Qur'an in Western Europe was much more complex While their reading efforts were certainly often focused on attacking Islam scholars of the period turned out to be equally interested in a whole range of grammatical lexical and interpretive problems presented by the text Indeed these two approaches were interconnected attacking the Qur'an often required sophisticated explorations of difficult Arabic grammatical problems Furthermore while most readers explicitly denounced the Qur'an as a fraud translations of the book are sometimes inserted into the standard manuscript format of Christian Bibles and other prestigious Latin texts small centered blocks of text surrounded by commentary or in manuscripts embellished with beautiful decorated initials and elegant calligraphy for the pleasure of wealthy collectors Addressing Christian Muslim relations generally as well as the histories of reading and the book Burman offers a much fuller picture of how Europeans read the sacred text of Islam than we have previously had Bulletin University of Michigan.
