through an intense and passionate pursuit of self education hoping to achieve a place among the literary elite His principal motivation is his love for Ruth Morse Because Eden is a rough uneducated sailor from a working class background 4 and the Morses are a bourgeois family a union between them would be impossible unless and until he reached their level of wealth and refinement Over a period of two years Eden promises Ruth that success will come but just before it does Ruth loses her patience and rejects him in a letter saying if only you had settled down and attempted to make something of yourself By the time Eden attains the favour of the publishers and the bourgeoisie who had shunned him he has already developed a grudge against them and become jaded by toil and unrequited love Instead of enjoying his success he retreats into a quiet indifference interrupted only to rail mentally against the genteelness of bourgeois society or to donate his new wealth to working class friends and family He felt that people did not value him for himself or for his work but only for his fame as some of the literary scholars he is studying One day while working in his position as a sailor on a ferry Martin defends Arthur Morse against a gang of hooligans Roughly the same age as Martin Arthur comes from a well to do family and has received a formal education Wanting to show Martin his gratitude for having saved him Arthur invites him to dinner thinking that his family will get a kick out of having an eccentric stranger as their dinner guest Martin accepts Arthur s invitation following him to his family home which he finds is filled with exquisite paintings books and music Fascinated by the presence of such a rich culture in the Morse home Martin feels quite humbled in comparison Martin is especially enthralled by the presence of Arthur s sister Ruth whom he believes to be the essence of purity and all that is good in the world He is immediately determined to prove himself worthy of her He knows that because of the status of the Morse family a union between him and Ruth would be very unlikely unless he could somehow attain the same level of wealth and social status a seemingly impossible mission Martin begins going to the library and reading extensively immersing himself in the knowledge of languages and literature He believes that he can educate himself enough to compete with others with a formal education Ruth believes in Martin and helps him with his studies acting as an encouraging presence in his life However Ruth s approach is very much a product of her own experiences and background which she tries to impose on Martin unsuccessfully She realizes that Martin is extremely different from the other men of her social circle and has difficulty coming to terms with this fact Meanwhile Martin is running out of money He has spent all of the money he earned on his last voyage and must once again set sail in order to sustain himself and continue his studies Martin has hired another sailor to help him on this journey and together they go off to sea for an eight month voyage During this time Martin continues to learn having brought books with him He improves a lot enriching his vocabulary and learning a lot about himself along the way During this voyage Martin decides that he wants to become a writer He feels that it will be a great way to relay his experiences traveling to the rest of the world and especially to Ruth He hopes to impress the girl with his writing and to share everything that he sees with her When Martin returns to Oakland he begins his writing process His first piece of writing is an essay on treasure hunters which he sends to the San Francisco Observer He then starts to work on a story about whalers During this time he is overcome with excitement over his newfound passion and he writes to Ruth about it expecting that she will be impressed with his dedication to the written word Ruth expresses that she is pleased that Martin has found his calling but she does not share in his lofty visions of being a celebrated writer She sees changes in him that she appreciates in the way he dresses and expresses himself but she is still concerned that he is not being realistic about his future Believing that the road to success is through studying she encourages Martin to take his secondary school exams which he fails miserably
