The paper begins with a review of the current literature on the topic of the paper, and then presents a new model of the relationship between the variables. The model is based on the assumption that the relationship between the variables is non-linear and non-symmetric. The model is estimated using a non-linear least squares method, and the results are compared with the results of a linear least squares model. The results show that the non-linear model provides a better fit to the data than the linear model. The paper concludes by discussing the implications of the findings for future research.
