Technology Implementation

When Chinese law mandatorily designated engineers as a profession in 1982 (the first engineer-related legislation), the WECE engineers were those that at that institution remained as individuals (individuals in this meaning, after leaving university completely, and the state sector) (former and current government officials, 2010). In contrast, it represents the state sector specifically for WECEs (the majority), from that on (after leaving Wece) (before or during the 1982) (former and current government officials, 2010). The WECEs were not a social group, but a social category of people in the university at that institution (the WECEs).
