Breaking the Silence Ellen Grünkemeier, 2013 South Africa is one of the countries in the world most affected by HIV AIDS and yet until recently the epidemic was barely visible in South African literature Much can be gained from approaching the South African epidemic through creative texts such as novels photographs films cartoons and murals because they produce and circulate meanings of HIV AIDS and its various facets such as its origin transmission routes and physical manifestations Other aspects explored are the denial of HIV AIDS its stigmatisation discriminatory practices modes of disclosure access to anti retroviral medication as well as the role of alternative treatment Creative texts which are open to different and possibly contradictory readings can serve as a starting point to increase the cultural visibility of the virus and to challenge dominant ideas about the epidemic The cultural constructions of HIV AIDS should be carefully examined because the meanings are pervasive and have very real consequences they play a powerful role both in determining which issues receive attention and in shaping public understanding of the virus

Darfur Chris Vaughan, 2015 This work engages with a fundamental question in the study of African history and politics to what extent did the colonial state re define the character of local politics in the societies it governed Existing scholarship on Darfur under the Anglo Egyptian Condominium 1916 1956 has suggested that colonial governance here represented either straightforward continuity or utterly transformative change from the region s deep history of independent statehood under the Darfur Sultanate This book argues that neither view is adequate it shows that British rule bequeathed a culture of governance to Darfur which often rested on state coercion and violence but which was also influenced by enduring local conceptions of the relationship between ruler and ruled and the agendas of local actors The state was perceived as a resource as well as a threat by local peoples Although the British did introduce significant changes to the character of governance in Darfur local populations negotiated the significance of these innovations challenging the authority of state appointed chiefs defying official attempts to police the boundaries of ethnic territories and competing for the resources of political support and development that the state represented Even the violence of the state was shaped and channelled by the initiative of local elites Finally the author suggests that contemporary conflict and politics in the region must be understood in the context of this deeper history of interaction between state and local agendas in shaping everyday realities of power and governance

Chris Vaughan is Lecturer in African History at Liverpool John Moores University Previously he taught at the Universities of Durham Leeds Liverpool and Edinburgh His articles have appeared in the Journal of African History and the Journal of Imperial and Commonwealth History He is co editor with Lotje De Vries and Mareike Schomerus of The Borderlands of South Sudan

Dealing with Government in South Sudan Cherry Leonardi, 2013 Explores various aspects of chiefly authority in South Sudan from its historical origins and evolution under colonial postcolonial and military rule to its current roles and value in the newly independent country South Sudan became Africa's newest nation in 2011 following decades of armed conflict Chiefs or traditional authorities became a particular focus of attention during the international relief effort and post war reconstruction and state building But traditional authority in South Sudan has been much misunderstood Institutions of chiefship were created during the colonial period but originated out of a much longer process of dealing with predatory external forces This book addresses a significant paradox in African studies more widely if chiefs were the product of colonial states why have they survived or revived in recent decades By examining the long term history of chiefship in the vicinity of three towns the book also argues for a new approach to the history of towns in South Sudan Towns have previously been analysed as the loci of alien state power yet the book demonstrates that these government centres formed an expanding urban frontier on which people actively sought knowledge and resources of the state Chiefs mediated relations on and across this frontier and in the process chiefship became central to constituting both the state and local communities

Cherry Leonardi is Senior Lecturer in African History at Durham University a former course director of the Rift Valley Institute's Sudan course and a member of the council of the British Institute in Eastern Africa

The State of Post-conflict Reconstruction Naseem Badiey, 2014 Naseem Badiey examines the local dynamics of the emerging capital city of Juba Southern Sudan during the historically pivotal transition period following the 2005 Comprehensive Peace Agreement CPA Focusing on the intersections of land tenure reform and urban development she challenges the dominant paradigm of post conflict reconstruction and re conceptualizes state building as a social process underpinned by negotiation Badiey explores local resistance to reconstruction programmes debates over the interpretation of peace settlements and competing claims to land and resources not as problems to be solved through interventions but as negotiations of authority which are fundamental to shaping the character of the state While donors and aid agency officials anticipated clashes between the Government of Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement SPLM following the CPA they did not foresee internal divisions that impeded reconstruction in Southern Sudan raising serious questions about the viability of an independent state In Juba local elites interpreted the CPA in line with their economic and political interests using claims to land authority and political power to challenge the SPLM's agenda for urban reconstruction In revealing how local actors strategically interpreted the framework of land rights in Southern Sudan the book offers a basis for understanding the challenges that confront the nascent South Sudan's state builders and their international partners in the future

NASEEM BADIEY is Assistant Professor of International Development and Humanitarian Action at California State University Monterey Bay Marikana Julian Brown, 2022 In August 2012 the South African police at the encouragement of mining capital and with the support of the political state intervened to end a week long strike at the Lonmin platinum mine in Marikana in South Africa's North West Province On the afternoon of Thursday 16 August they police shot and killed 34 men Hundreds more were injured some shot as they fled None posed a threat to any police officer Recognised by many as an event of international significance in stories of global politics and labour relations the perspectives of the miners has however been almost missing from published accounts This book for the first time brings into focus the men's lives and deaths telling the stories of those who embarked on the strike those who were killed and of the family members who have survived to fight for the memories of their loved ones It places the strike in the context of South Africa's long history of racial and economic exclusion explaining how the miners came to be in Marikana how their lives were ordinarily lived and the substance of their complaints It shows how the strike developed from an initial gathering into a mass movement of more than 3 000 workers It discusses the violence of the strike and explores the political context of the state's response and the eagerness of the police to collaborate in suppressing the strike Recounting the events of the massacre in unprecedented detail the book sets out how each miner died and everything we know about the police operation Finally Brown traces the aftermath the attempts of the families of the deceased to identify and bury their dead and then the state's attempts to spin a narrative that placed all blame on the miners the subsequent Commission of Inquiry and its failure to resolve any real issues and the solidarity politics that have emerged since
