

LAB 6-B CYCLONIC WEATHER SYSTEMS

INTRODUCTION: The United States Weather Service is a division of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). Data is collected from about 4000 stations in the United States, as well as from foreign countries and from ships at sea. This information is instrumental in weather, energy, ozone, ozone depletion, and CFC work. This section shows plots that meteorologists use to synthesize data used to predict any weather changes.

Weather patterns are often associated, and therefore for different geographic areas of the United States. The National Weather Service Forecast Center in Kansas City, Missouri, produces and monitors forecasts, while the Bureau was directed by the National Hurricane Center in Miami, Florida. In addition to using meteorological synoptic maps for forecast, there is also weather conditions. These systems also employ meteorological units and NOAA's best practices and forecast systems.

OBJECTIVE: Analyze a series of synoptic weather maps with information that leads to a weather system and make a 24-hour prediction for a given location. This will use various units and a forecast and a forecast for synoptic data interpretation of the weather system.
