

The background of the slide is a collage of various elements. At the top, there are several overlapping newspaper clippings. One clipping on the right features a portrait of a woman with long brown hair, looking slightly to the side. Another clipping below it has the text 'STAVE ONE' and 'BARLEY'S ORDS'. The central part of the slide is a solid brown rectangle with a fine, diagonal line pattern. At the bottom, there are more newspaper clippings, including one with a large, dark, grainy photograph of a person in a dark setting, and another with text that appears to be from a story or article. The overall aesthetic is that of a vintage or literary-themed digital interface.

How Can I Read A Online:

Online News and the Public Michael B. Salwen, Bruce Garrison, Paul D. Driscoll, 2004-12-13 This volume offers unique and timely insights on the state of online news exploring the issues surrounding this convergence of print and electronic platforms and the public's response to it. It provides an overview of online newspapers including current trends and legal issues and covering issues of credibility and perceptions by online news users. The heart of the book is formed by empirical studies mostly social surveys coming out of the media effects and uses traditions. The chapters are grounded in theoretical frameworks and bring much needed theory to the study of online news. The frameworks guiding these studies include media credibility, the third person effect, media displacement and uses and gratifications. The book ends with a section devoted to research on online news postings. This book is appropriate for scholars, researchers and students in journalism, mass communication, new media and related areas and will be of interest to anyone examining how people use the web as a source for news.

How We Read Now Naomi Baron, 2021-02-24 Readers of all ages especially those in school use learning materials in print on digital screens and increasingly with audio. While the words may be the same, research shows important differences in the way we concentrate, understand and remember with these three media. In How We Read Now, linguist and reading expert Naomi Baron presents cutting edge research on reading media and offers practical strategies for maximizing success with each format.

Far-Right Extremism Online Tine Munk, 2024-06-14 By imparting crucial insights into the digital evolution of far right extremism and its challenges, this book explores how far right extremism has transformed utilising digital spaces for communication and employing coded language to evade detection. Far right extremism has spread extensively across online platforms. Flourishing within echo chambers, these groups propagate different types of online and offline actions and advance their hateful ideologies to a wide-ranging audience. This book highlights the issues surrounding far right extremism which distinguish it from terrorism and examining its contemporary digital manifestations. Importantly it sheds light on how far right groups utilise online platforms for communication, radicalisation and on ground actions relying on alternative truths, misinformation, conspiracy theories, fashion and memes to connect with like minded individuals. The book also addresses content moderation challenges and the impact of rising populism in today's political climate which fuels societal divisions and uncertainty. Far Right Extremism Online is a valuable resource for academics, students, analysts and professionals working in counter extremism, cybersecurity, digital communication and national security. It is also an indispensable guide for those concerned about far right extremism in the digital age.
