How Regional Trade Blocs Affect Liberalisation Of International Trade:

How Regional Trade Blocs affect Liberalisation of International Trade Kelly Bill, 2014-09-15 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Business economics Trade and Distribution grade B Stanford University language English abstract A trade bloc is a preferential trade agreement between a range of nations aimed at significantly reducing or removing trade barriers within the member states Regional trade blocs are formed by neighbouring countries or countries that are in close proximity to each other The two key features of a trade bloc is that 1 it involves a cutback or abolition of obstacles to trade and 2 the trade liberalisation that is attained through the trade bloc is discriminatory in purview of the fact that it is applicable only to the member states of the trade bloc and non member countries are shown prejudice in their dealings with members of the trade bloc The first aspect of trade blocs above is in line with the mission of the World trade Organisation WTO and its antecedent the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT The principle of Non discrimination under the GATT stipulates that no member state shall show prejudice between GATT members during the operations of world trade In the same magnitude the WTO offers an environment for negotiating agreements that are focused on reducing barriers to international trade and making sure that trade is carried out on a basis of openness thus contributing to economic growth as well as development Notably although trade blocs have different structures they are premised on the same objective that is to lessen trade barriers among member states The second aspect of trade blocs however seems to be in conflict with the motive of the GATT WTO system The preamble of the GATT is very clear on promoting non discrimination in international trade by reinforcing the need for reciprocal and equally advantageous arrangements focused on substantial cutbacks in tariffs and other obstacles to trade and to the abolition of discriminatory treatment in international trade Equally under the WTO as well as under its predecessor the GATT trade discrimination is promoted through the use of the principles of the Most Favoured Nation MFN that requires treatment of other people equally as pertains to trade and the principle of National Treatment which stipulates that foreigners and locals should be treated equally in trade matters The above overview of regional trading blocs implies that different opinions can be stated regarding how trading blocs affect liberalisation of trade

The International Economy Peter B. Kenen, 2000-01-13 This text is an introduction to international economics for upper level undergraduates and above The first half examines the causes and effects of international trade how tariffs and other trade policies affect the gains from trade and the ways in which governments try collectively to regulate those policies The second half deals with monetary matters the behavior of exchange rates how trade and capital flows affect the functioning of monetary and fiscal policies the causes and management of currency crises and the new European monetary union This fourth edition assesses the outcome of the Uruguay Round of trade negotiations the work of the new World Trade Organization WTO and the challenges posed by regional trade blocs A problem set follows each chapter Bilateral and Regional Trade Agreements: Volume 1 Simon Lester, Bryan Mercurio, Lorand Bartels, 2016-01-07 The stalling of the Doha

Development Round trade negotiations has resulted in bilateral and regional free trade agreements BRTAs becoming an important alternative These agreements have proliferated in recent years and now all of the major trading countries are engaging in serious bilateral trade negotiations with multiple trading partners This second edition provides updated and comprehensive analysis of the contents and trends of recent BRTAs It is unique in that it situates these agreements in their economic international law and international relations contexts It also comprehensively reviews the recent agreements in relation to each substantive topic covered e g intellectual property investment services and social policy so as to provide an overview of the law being created in these areas Bilateral and Regional Trade Agreements Bryan Mercurio, Simon

Nicholas Lester, Lorand Bartels, 2009 Trade Liberalisation and Economic Development in Africa Gift

Mugano, 2021-09-30 This book provides a thorough and rigorous discussion on the impact of trade liberalisation on economic development with a special focus on the African continent The author presents the rationale for trade liberalisation trade liberalisation frameworks the trade liberalisation economic development nexus impediments to trade and contemporary issues of international trade In this book notwithstanding the benefits from trade liberalisation the author shows that African trade as a share of global trade has remained flat at 3% as in 1975 while the continent's exports have remained raw materials and its intra regional trade at less than 15% of total trade which is the lowest in the world UNCTAD 2020 With respect to key economic development indicators such as economic growth poverty levels and employment levels this book shows that ironically and in direct contrast with the conventional views that trade liberalisation alleviates poverty trade liberalisation in Africa has resulted in high levels of unemployment and low economic growth which ultimately lead to increased poverty In addition this book provides a detailed analysis of why trade liberalisation has failed to yield meaningful benefits to Africa The binding constraints and blockages which prevent positive spin offs on trade liberalisation in Africa are discussed in detail in this book In the same vein the author provides practical strategies which must be adopted by African countries in order to gain from trade liberalisation making this work a must read for African governments academia trade experts regional trading blocs the World Trade Organization and development partners In view of this and as part of the disruptive and structural transformation policies the author discusses case studies and international experience contextualised to Africa as well as strategies for addressing the trade related infrastructure gap production capacities export promotion and aid for trade Assessing the Environmental Effects of Trade Liberalisation Agreements Methodologies

Timothy, 2019-12-27 Globalization entails the world becoming a smaller place through political socio cultural and economic processes These processes have salient implications for tourism and tourism itself is one of the driving forces behind globalization This book is a collection of conceptual treatises by international scholars about the dynamics and reach of globalization and its relationships with tourism It anatomizes and deconstructs the global forces processes and challenges that face the world of tourism It is international in scope encyclopedic in its conceptual depth empirically evocative and contemporary in its coverage Quantifying the Benefits of Liberalising Trade in Services OECD,2003-06-04 Amongst other issues the papers in this volume explore fundamental issues for empirical research on trade in services It highlights the specific data requirements and conceptual challenges for modelling liberalisation of services European Yearbook of International Economic Law 2013 Christoph Herrmann,Markus Krajewski,Jörg Philipp Terhechte,2013-04-02 Part one of Volume 4 2013 of the European Yearbook of International Economic Law offers a special focus on recent developments in international competition policy and law International competition law has only begun to emerge as a distinct subfield of international economic law in recent years even though international agreements on competition co operation date back to the 1970s Competition law became a prominent subject of political and academic debates in the late 1990s when competition and trade were discussed as one of the Singapore issues in the WTO Today international competition law is a complex and multi layered system of rules and principles encompassing not only the external application of domestic competition law and traditional bilateral co operation agreements but also competition provisions in regional trade agreements and non binding guidelines and standards Furthermore the relevance of competition law for developing countries and the relationship between competition law and public services are the subject of heated debates The contributions to this volume reflect the growing diversity of the issues and elements of international competition law Part two presents analytical reports on the developments of the regional integration processes in North America Central Africa and Southeast Asia as well as on the treaty practice of the European Union Part three covers the legal and political developments in major international organizations that deal with international economic law namely the IMF WCO WTO WIPO ICSID and UNCTAD Lastly part four offers book reviews of recent works in the field of international economic law Multilateralising Regionalism Richard E. Baldwin,2006 This paper addresses the final steps to global free trade the political economy forces that might drive them and the role the WTO might play in guiding them Two facts form the departure point 1 Regionalism is here to stay 2 the motley assortment of regional trade agreements is not the best way to organise world trade Moving to global duty free trade will require a multilateralisation of regionalism The paper presents the political economy logic of trade liberalisation and uses it to structure a narrative of world trade liberalisation since 1947 The logic is then used to project the world tariff map in 2010 arguing that the pattern will be marked by fractals fuzzy leaky trade blocs made up of fuzzy leaky sub blocs fuzzy since the proliferation of FTAs makes it impossible to draw sharp lines around the 3 big blocs and leaky since some FTAs create free trade canals linking the blocs The paper then presents a novel political economy mechanism spaghetti bowls as building blocs whereby offshoring creates a force that encourages the multilateralisation of regionalism Finally the paper suggests three things the WTO could do to help multilateralise regionalism International Economics Raj Kumar,2008
