Joint Fleet Forces Maintenance Manual:

Impacts of the Fleet Response Plan on Surface Combatant Maintenance Roland J. Yardley, 2006 To achieve a more responsive and more readily deployable fleet of surface combatants the Navy adopted the Fleet Response Plan FRP in 2003 to replace its traditional ship maintenance and readiness cycle The goal of the FRP is to have non deployed ships achieve a high level of readiness earlier and to maintain high readiness longer so that they can deploy on short notice However a challenge of implementing the FRP is establishing the processes and procedures as well as a ready industrial base to facilitate maintenance planning and execution to meet the now unpredictable FRP surge requirements and maintenance demands By concentrating specifically on the DDG 51 class of destroyers the authors of this report look at the effects the FRP has had thus far and determine whether maintenance resources are meeting maintenance demands and whether related industry resources have been coordinated effectively Overall the authors determine that the initiative appears to have promising effects but that more time will be needed to assess maintenance supply and demand apart from the increase of funding tied to military operations post September 11 2001

A Methodology for Estimating the Effect of Aircraft Carrier Operational Cycles on the Maintenance Industrial Base Roland J. Yardley, 2007 Over the next two decades the United States Navy will at any one time have a fleet of ten to 12 aircraft carriers Of these two or three will be continuously deployed and on station at any one time in its major overseas operational areas of the Mediterranean the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf region and the Western Pacific in support of combatant commanders In addition the Navy intends to surge carriers including those already deployed so that a total of six carriers can be provided to combatant commanders within 30 days and another carrier within 90 days The ability of the Navy to meet all these requirements is constrained both by the six month limit on deployment length and by the intensive training and maintenance demands of aircraft carriers The Navy has considered the six month limit on deployments and the predictability of Carrier Strike Groups CSGs rotation key to maintaining forward presence while meeting personnel recruiting and retention goals In addition maintenance is constantly being performed on aircraft carriers with nearly a third of a carrier's lifetime being spent either preparing for or actually in depot level repair availabilities in which it is not deployable
