Joint Implementation To Curb Climate Change Joint Implementation To Curb Climate Change:

Joint Implementation to Curb Climate Change Onno J. Kuik, Paul Peters, Nico Schrijver, 1994-03-31 This work commissioned by the Netherlands Ministry of Housing Spatial Planning and the Environment analyzes in the light of the history of the 1992 Climate Change Convention and of precedents the aims of the joint implementation provisions of the Convention and the controversies that have arisen about them. It combines a comprehensive study of legal aspects with a penetrating economic analysis and a report on possibilities of joint implementation between the Netherlands and Poland. The book appears at a time when the Convention is entering into force March 1994 and is the first book on the subject since the Convention was adopted in 1992. It will be of interest not only to academic lawyers and economists with an interest in international environmental developments but to environmentalists generally and to all those in industry and in public service nationally and internationally who are likely to get involved in the practice of joint implementation under this Convention.

Joint Implementation to Curb Climate Change Onno J. Kuik, Paul Peters, Nico Schrijver, 2013-06-29 This book is about joint implementation. It addresses legal, economic and institutional questions which should be taken into account in setting up joint implementation projects and in developing criteria for joint implementation under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (FCCC). First however, before going into any detail, we shall briefly sketch the background, quoting Daniel Bodansky. Each year mankind injects approximately six billion tons of carbon into the atmosphere from the burning of fossil fuels as well as a substantial although still uncertain amount from deforestation. Since the advent of the industrial revolution, atmospheric concentrations of carbon dioxide have risen by more than twenty five percent from 280 to more than 350 parts per million. Scientists estimate that if current patterns of emissions continue unchecked, the increasing concentrations of carbon dioxide together with parallel increases in other trace gases such as methane and nitrous oxide will cause an average global warming in the range of 0.2 to 0.5 °C per decade or 2 to 5 °C by the end of the next century. Such a temperature rise, more rapid than at any time in human history, could have severe effects on coastal areas, agriculture, forests, and human health. In recent years, there has been growing awareness of the extent of the damage done to the world's environment through unsustainable patterns of development.

General Accounting Office, 1998 Global Warming and Climate Change (2 Vols.) V I Grover, 2016-04-19 Now as we stand at the crossroads, the steps taken by national governments, business communities and others involved in the negotiations will determine which path we will take as a world community to mitigate and to adapt to climate change. As discussed in the book in the coming years, it is more politics than policies that will determine the way.

International Environmental Laws Controlling Transboundary Atmospheric Pollution in Southeast Asia - Rajawali Pers Dr. Sukanda Husin, S.H., LL.M., 2023-07-07 The issue of global warming and global climate change as mainly caused by transboundary air pollutants has emerged since the middle of the 1970 s To some extent the impacts of global warming and global climate change are still considered uncertain by a great many nations However several environmental catastrophes have been proved highly related to the release of certain noxious emissions creating global warming and global climate change Global warming is presently one of the most threatening environmental issues facing the world Although the uncertainty of the issue is still high the United Nations Organization based on precautionary principle concluded the 1985 Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer hereinafter cited as the Ozone Convention the 1987 Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer and the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change in 1992 ASEAN has not done much to implement the Ozone Convention and the Climate Change Convention in the region ASEAN tended to pass soft laws rather than hard laws to deal with transboundary atmospheric pollution especially resulting from land and forest fires The book is therefore necessary to examine a specific regional environmental policies and laws dealing with global warming and climate change in Southeast Asia ASEAN the Association of Southeast Asian Nations as a fairly big regional cooperation with a great many environmental problems is chosen as examples on how a region implements international treaties coping with the issues of global warming and climate change and on what prospects a region might have in tackling the issues

Technologies B. Eliasson, P. Riemer, A. Wokaun, 1999-05-20 These proceedings contain 270 papers outlining ideas and contributions to the new scientific technical and political discipline of Greenhouse Gas GHG Control The contributions were presented at the 4th International Conference on Greenhouse Gas Control Technologies GHGT 4 It was the largest gathering of experts active in this new and fast developing field GHGT 4 was different from its predecessors in that it included all greenhouse gases not only CO2 and all issues which could contribute to the mitigation of the greenhouse problem technical economic and political The main focus was on practical solutions and real demonstrations of mitigation technology being planned and implemented today It also addressed ways to increase the efficiency of power production and utilisation and looked at proposals to encourage the development of renewable energy sources During the Opening Session 10 keynote addresses were heard from prominent personalities in government industry and academia To tackle this very interdisciplinary problem and to achieve acceptable solutions it is essential for industry and government to initiate intense dialogue and cooperation Conferences like this can provide the opportunity for a meeting of minds between engineers and politicians in the face of global challenge The primary attributes of this global challenge are manifold the problem is global and international it is interdisciplinary both in substance and approach it covers technical political and economic issues and involves government science industry and academia it is complex and non linear and it will take the efforts of all parties involved to solve the problem These proceedings contain ideas for starting demonstration projects and for making better use of the power and flexibility of market measures They also show it is a problem we can influence and that there is a wealth of ideas The challenge now is to find the right partners to put these ideas into action

Economic Instruments for Air Pollution Control Ger Klaassen, Finn R. Førsund, 2012-12-06 Economic theory and empirical models suggest that economic instruments should help us to meet environmental goals at lower cost Practical experience however shows that the cost savings of emission trading are smaller than expected and charges usually have had small incentive impacts This book gives the first comprehensive review of economic theory simulation models and practical experience with the use of economic instruments The book focuses on air pollution control Part I examines theoretical aspects and simulation modeling in a national context Part II surveys the practical experience in a variety of countries Part III explores international issues such as joint implementation Because of its unique blend of theoretical and empirical research the book will prove interesting for both economists and those interested in environmental policy
