The US National Climate Assessment Katharine Jacobs, Susanne Moser, James Buizer, 2016-08-09 This book offers valuable climate policy and climate assessment lessons depicting what it takes to build a sustained climate assessment process It explores the third U S National Climate Assessment NCA3 report as compared with previous US national climate assessments from both a process and content perspective The U S Global Change Research Program is required by law to produce a National Climate Assessment report every four years and these reports provide a comprehensive evaluation of climate science as well as observed and projected climate impacts on a variety of sectors As the book describes a key contribution of the NCA3 approach is a far more deliberate interdisciplinary process as well as an engagement strategy that brought hundreds of public and private sector stakeholders into the assessment community Among its most important conceptual contributions was an explicit focus on building the infrastructure to conduct better assessments over time and an experimental approach to analysis of the impacts of climate on cross sectoral systems and interlocking and cascading effects across sectors Readers may explore innovations such as the development of regional climatologies and projections for every region of the US as well as the development of the Global Change Information System The book also highlights the need for decision makers to be part of the assessment process in order for assessment findings to be truly useful from a decision maker s perspective Many lessons have been learned by the NCA3 authors that can be useful in future assessments and adaptation processes both within the US and internationally This book passes on such lessons and includes an evaluation of the role of state climate assessments in ongoing national assessment processes

Ocean Acidification National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on the Development of an Integrated Science Strategy for Ocean Acidification Monitoring, 2010-10-14 The ocean has absorbed a significant portion of all human made carbon dioxide emissions This benefits human society by moderating the rate of climate change but also causes unprecedented changes to ocean chemistry Carbon dioxide taken up by the ocean decreases the pH of the water and leads to a suite of chemical changes collectively known as ocean acidification The long term consequences of ocean acidification are not known but are expected to result in changes to many ecosystems and the services they provide to society Ocean Acidification A National Strategy to Meet the Challenges of a Changing Ocean reviews the current state of knowledge explores gaps in understanding and identifies several key findings Like climate change ocean acidification is a growing global problem that will intensify with continued CO₂ emissions and has the potential to change marine ecosystems and affect benefits to society The federal government has taken positive initial steps by developing a national ocean acidification program but more information is needed to fully understand and address the threat that ocean acidification may pose to marine ecosystems and the services they provide In addition a global observation network of chemical and biological sensors is needed to monitor changes in ocean conditions attributable to acidification Decision Making under Deep Uncertainty

Popper, 2019-04-04 This open access book focuses on both the theory and practice associated with the tools and approaches for decisionmaking in the face of deep uncertainty It explores approaches and tools supporting the design of strategic plans under deep uncertainty and their testing in the real world including barriers and enablers for their use in practice The book broadens traditional approaches and tools to include the analysis of actors and networks related to the problem at hand It also shows how lessons learned in the application process can be used to improve the approaches and tools used in the design process The book offers guidance in identifying and applying appropriate approaches and tools to design plans as well as advice on implementing these plans in the real world For decisionmakers and practitioners the book includes realistic examples and practical guidelines that should help them understand what decisionmaking under deep uncertainty is and how it may be of assistance to them Decision Making under Deep Uncertainty From Theory to Practice is divided into four parts Part I presents five approaches for designing strategic plans under deep uncertainty Robust Decision Making Dynamic Adaptive Planning Dynamic Adaptive Policy Pathways Info Gap Decision Theory and Engineering Options Analysis Each approach is worked out in terms of its theoretical foundations methodological steps to follow when using the approach latest methodological insights and challenges for improvement In Part II applications of each of these approaches are presented Based on recent case studies the practical implications of applying each approach are discussed in depth Part III focuses on using the approaches and tools in real world contexts based on insights from real world cases Part IV contains conclusions and a synthesis of the lessons that can be drawn for designing applying and implementing strategic plans under deep uncertainty as well as recommendations for future work The publication of this book has been funded by the Radboud University the RAND Corporation Delft University of Technology and Deltares The Fiscal Year 2010 Budget for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation. Subcommittee on Oceans, Atmosphere, Fisheries, and Coast Guard, 2010 Effective Risk Communication Joseph Arvai, Louie Rivers III, 2013-10-30 There are two questions often asked of risk communication what has been learned from past work and what is needed to push the field forward Drawing on the experience of leading risk researchers and practitioners Effective Risk Communication focuses on answering these questions The book draws together new examples of research and practice from contexts as diverse as energy generation human health nuclear waste climate change food choice and social media This book treats risk communication as much more than the interchange of risk information between experts and non experts rather it aims to emphasise the diversity in viewpoints and practices In each specially commissioned chapter the authors reflect on the theoretical and applied underpinnings of their best projects and comment on how their approach could be used effectively by others Building upon each other the chapters will provoke new discussion and action around a discipline which many feel is neither meeting important needs in practice nor living up to its potential in research Through a more careful examination of the work already done in risk communication the book will help develop better more reflective practice for the future
